Natural Cell Mediated Immunity Against Tumors:

Natural Cell-Mediated Immunity Against Tumors Ronald Herberman, 2012-12-02 Natural Cell Mediated Immunity Against Tumors aims to be the first book to provide a comprehensive discussion on natural cell mediated immunity against tumors. This book is mostly a collection of different research contributed by leading laboratories. It also presents a better perspective of how natural mechanisms fit in with and relate to the traditional and more extensively studied components of the immune system. The book starts off with an overview of the contents of the volume, the historical development of the advances in the field of research and the status of knowledge in the subject area. Divided into four major sections, the book consists of a total of 98 chapters. The sections discuss the natural killer cells and related cells and the natural lymphokine production. This book also explains the natural macrophage and granulocyte cytotoxicity. The book will be a helpful reference for students, professionals and researchers in biology, immunology, biochemistry, microbiology and other related fields.

Journal of the National Cancer Institute, 1983 Journal of the National Cancer Institute, 1984 Interferons and Their Applications P.E. Come, W.A. Carter, 2012-12-06 Today the basic mood of researchers and clinical investigators both at the center and on the periphery of interferon studies is optimistic regarding the future of interferons as therapeutic substances. Many also feel these polypeptides will prove invaluable probes in unraveling certain fundamental biochemical processes which control the life cycle and developmental pattern of many human cells. In contrast, only a year or two ago this optimism had given way to an attitude almost of disenchantment as public and scientific expectations were raised steeply then rapidly waned as it turns out prematurely. Both the multiple actions of interferons, a virtual cascade of biochemical reactions may be induced as documented herein and the high visibility of interferon research provided by the millions of dollars invested both by national health agencies and by multinational pharmaceutical companies contributed to an upsurge in public attention to drug development probably unprecedented in this century. Virtually every oncologist it would seem was plagued by requests for the experimental agent although they already had therapies of more proven value. As recently as 1980 even though interferon had achieved success against certain cancers and certain viral diseases, the variability in clinical results was seemingly ever present and little evidence emerged to suggest interferons could cure advanced diseases. Why then the resurgence of an optimistic mood? There are almost always many elements which contribute to happiness and this is certainly true of the broad frontier of interferon and its place in biochemical research and treatment. Annual Report - National Cancer Institute National Cancer Institute (U.S.), 1976 JNCI, Journal of the National Cancer Institute National Cancer Institute (U.S.), 1985 The Nude Mouse in Experimental and Clinical Research Jorgen Fogh, 2014-01-01 The Nude Mouse in Experimental and Clinical Research presents the state of knowledge regarding the nude mouse and its applications to different branches of scientific research. The research studies featured in this book emphasize the academic status of a broad range of subjects and techniques of nude mouse research. The text consists of 21 chapters each discussing an important aspect of nude mouse research. Some chapters discuss the biological aspect such as physiology, genes and breeding and mass production of the mouse. A number of the chapters also discuss the general observations of the mouse like histopathological observations and their background. The applications of the nude mouse to human tumor and cancer cell research are likewise given emphasis. This book will be of valuable importance to both students and researchers in the fields of medicine, biology and pathology.

NK Cells and Other Natural Effector Cells Ronald B. Herberman, 2012-12-02. NK Cells and Other Natural Effector Cells reviews the state of knowledge on NK cells and other natural effector mechanisms. The coverage of immune effector systems ranges from basic studies on their nature, regulation and mechanisms of action to important practical issues such as their role in host resistance, their modulation by therapeutic intervention and alterations of their activity in disease. The book is organized into 12 parts. Parts I and II examine the characteristics of NK cells and other natural effector cells respectively. Part III focuses on the cell lineage of NK and related effector cells, providing evidence for or against T cell lineage, for or against macrophage lineage and for or against other or separate lineage. Part IV deals with the genetics of natural resistance in the mouse and rat. Part V presents studies on the regulation of cytotoxic activity. Part VI examines the specificity of natural effector cells, covering the nature of target cell structures and the nature of recognition receptors in effector cells. Part VII discusses the cytotoxicity by cultured lymphoid cells, while Part VIII turns to the mechanisms of cytotoxicity. Part IX deals with natural cell mediated reactivity against primary tumor cells and against non tumor targets. Part X examines NK cell tumors or the presence of NK cells at the site of tumor growth. Part XI presents clinical studies with natural effector cells. Part XII provides evidence for in vivo reactivity of natural effector cells.

Biological Responses in Cancer Enrico Mihich, 2013-03-09. The series of volumes entitled Biological Responses in Cancer Progress toward Potential Applications provides information on approaches through which the interaction between neoplastic and normal cells may be modified. Each annual volume contains contributions in areas where significant progress has been made. Topics to be dealt with include immunologic and host defense systems, control mechanisms of cell and population growth, cell differentiation and cell transformation. The regulatory mechanisms controlling the interactions between normal and tumor cells may be immunologic in nature or they may relate to diverse biological characteristics of tumor and normal cells and their response to micro environmental factors. While the central question of tumor immunology addresses the nature and uniqueness of tumor associated antigens in humans, the identification of the stages of differentiation and functions of the various cell types involved in immunity is advancing rapidly. The development of monoclonal antibody methodologies together with progress in the biochemical characterization of cell markers, cell separation and measurement of cell functions has significantly aided in the identification and quantitation of different cell types. Establishing the role of these cells in the regulation of human immune mechanisms offers a means for evaluating the status of the immune responses in cancer patients and for assessing the effects that tumor and antitumor treatments may exert on their functionality which in turn may alter the effects of antitumor treatments
