

SEX & GENDER GLOSSARY

SEX

A set of biological attributes including chromosomes, gene expression, hormone levels and functions, and reproductive anatomy. Sex is usually assigned at birth by observation of a baby's external genitalia, not by their internal organs, hormones, or genes.

GENDER

Society constructed roles, behaviors, expressions, and identities. Gender is often treated, erroneously, as equivalent to sex (boys/men = male and girls/women = female).

GENDER EXPRESSION

External manifestations of gender, expressed through a person's name, pronouns, appearance, clothing, voice, and/or behavior.

GENDER DIVERSE

An umbrella term describing any person whose gender identity, role, or expression differs from socially prescribed (gender) norms.

INTERSEX

Describes a person with one or more male sex characteristics, including genitalia, internal reproductive organs, and chromosomes, that fall outside of binary conceptions of male or female bodies. Around 1.7% of people are born intersex, comparable to the number of people born with red hair.

GENDER IDENTITY

A person's internal, deeply held knowledge of their gender.

CISGENDER

Describes a person whose gender identity matches their sex assigned at birth.

TRANSGENDER (TRANS)

Describes a person whose gender identity differs from the sex they were assigned at birth.

NONBINARY (ALSO GENDER FLUID, GENDERQUEER, AND AGENDER)

Describes a person whose experience of their gender identity and/or gender expression falls outside the binary gender categories of "man" and "woman."

GENDER DYSPHORIA

The distress a person experiences when their gender identity does not match their sex assigned at birth.

GENDER-AFFIRMING CARE

An umbrella term to describe surgical, hormonal, psychological, or other medical services provided to transgender and gender diverse people.

GENDER EUPHORIA

The comfort and joy someone experiences when their gender expression is aligned with their gender identity.

TRANSITIONING

The medical, legal, and/or social process a person undertakes to bring their gender expression closer to their body into alignment with their gender identity.

MISGENDERING

When someone addresses or refers to another person by the wrong gender. This includes referring to a person using the wrong pronouns or honorifics such as Mr. or Ms., or by calling a trans person by their deadname—the name they used before they transitioned.

Body and Gender Roberta Sassatelli, Rossella Ghigi, 2023-12-11 Even though we often think of bodies as natural and given or else as freely plastic objects bodies are both constructed and fundamental to our sense of self This book investigates the body as an essential vector of inequality shaped by institutions interaction and culture and how in turn it contributes to partly modify them Sassatelli and Ghigi show how the process of embodiment is at the same time naturalized and contested particularly evident in the case of gender Drawing on classical sociological research about modernity and contemporary studies that emphasize intersectionality the book looks at how the gendered body has been conceptualized with special attention to body politics the power of appearance and the representation of embodied identity It also considers the interplay between body sex and sexuality and the way gendered bodies intersect with other dimensions of social inequality such as race age class and disability This exploration of the rich field of sociological inquiry into the gendered body will be an invaluable read for all seeking to understand gender sexuality and embodiment in contemporary society

Sex, Gender and International Human Rights Law Giovanna Gilleri, 2023-12-01 This book investigates the relationship between sex and gender under international human rights law and how this influences the formation of individual subjects Combining feminist queer and psychoanalytical perspectives the author scrutinises the sexed gendered human rights discourse starting from the assumptions underpinning interpretations of sex gender and the related notions of gender identity sex characteristics and sexual orientation Human rights law has so far offered only a limited account of the diversity of sexed gendered subjectivities being based on a series of simplistic assumptions Namely that there are only two sexes and two genders sex is a natural fact and gender is a social construct gender is the metonymic signifier for women and gender power relations take the asymmetrical shape of male domination versus female oppression Against these assumptions dominative and subordinate postures interchangeably attach to femininities and masculinities depending on the subjects roles their positionalities and the situational meanings of their acts The limits of an approach to gender which is based on rigid binaries are evident in two case studies on the UN human rights treaty bodies vocabulary on medically unnecessary interventions upon intersex children and on the European Court of Human Rights narrative on sadomasochism This examination of the impact of human rights on gendered subjectivities will be of interest to scholars students and researchers in international law gender studies queer studies cultural studies critical race theory and psychoanalysis

Body Politics Rethinking Gender and Masculinity Tanmoy Baghira & Ananya Mukherjee, 2021-01-31 The research on men and masculinities traces back to the women's and gay liberation movements that challenged existing understandings of gender and power This proposes to look into gender as socially constructed than what was earlier thought to be biological As a logical extension of Feminism Masculinity Studies looks into sex gender as a discursive social construct and tries to understand them through theoretical hermeneutics Instead of considering masculinity to be natural character type a behavioural average or a norm the focus should be given to the process through which the gendered bodies perform In this regard sex gender is not fixed instead is in a continuous flux thus masculinity should be recognised as a gender presentation that is continuously transforming and evolving This volume Body Politics Rethinking Gender and Masculinity will engage with the current developments in the field of Masculinity Studies and will try to diversify the issues of gender and masculinity

Elemental Difference and the Climate of the Body Emily Anne Parker, 2021 In nineteenth century Europe differences among human bodies were understood to be matters of scientific classification At the height of scientific acceptance it was unthinkable that race or sex or diagnosis or indigence were invention Today however differences among human bodies are understood as matters of social construction The philosophy of social construction understands differences among humans to be matters of human imposition Social constructionism's way of understanding the origin of differences among humans is so well established as to have no currently viable alternatives even among new materialists social constructionism's most ardent critics This book argues that new materialists and social constructionists share a distinction between the political and the ecological Emily Anne Parker centers her argument on the philosophical concept of the polis according to which there is one complete human form It is this form that is to blame for our current political and ecological crisis Political hierarchies and ecological crises are often considered to be two different problems for example many speak of parallel problems climate change and racial injustice Parker argues that these are not parallel crises

so much as one problem the polis The philosophy of the polis asserts that there is one complete human body and that body is meant to govern all other things In that sense there are not two crises but instead one concern to perceive the ways in which this tradition of the polis constrains the present Elemental difference in the polis is appreciated in the fact that empirical bodily non identity an Aristotelian concept can be called upon to elevate one group of bodies among the rest Parker builds from Sylvia Wynter who argues that the very idea of empirical bodily non identity begins with the modern science of racial anatomy or what Wynter calls biocentrism Parker argues that biocentrism is a feature of the polis according to which the one complete body was defined by its capacity for disembodied thought The sciences of racial anatomy are a more explicit commitment to biocentrism but the ranking of matter with respect to one complete human a body that is the site of supra natural thinking is a practice that has always characterized the polis In this way the polis is responsible for both political and ecological hierarchy It is as responsible for what is euphemistically called climate change as it is for the political hierarchy that constitutes it Elemental Difference and the Climate of the Body ultimately bridges the insights of social constructionism and new materialisms to create a philosophy of elemental difference Difference rather than needing to be either dismissed based on its social construction or reified in keeping with the hierarchies of the polis is crucial for addressing contemporary crises of the polis

Sex, Gender, and Science M. Hird, 2004-11-05 In Sex Gender and Science Myra Hird outlines the social study of science and nature specifically in relation to sex sex differences and sexuality She examines how Western understandings of sex are based less upon understanding material sex differences than on a discourse that emphasizes sex dichotomy over sex diversity and argues for a feminist engagement with scientific debate that embraces the diversity and complexity of nature

The Seduction of the Female Body Eva De Clercq, 2013-02-18 Drawing on the ambiguous meaning of the notion of vulnerability the book offers an innovative approach to the topic of the female body in relation to women s rights going beyond the age old dichotomy of casting women as either passive victims or conscious agents
