Public Health Service. Division of Occupational Health,1965 How the Laser Happened Charles H. Townes,2002-02-28 In How the Laser Happened Nobel laureate Charles Townes provides a highly personal look at some of the leading events in twentieth century physics Townes was inventor of the maser of which the laser is one example an originator of spectroscopy using microwaves and a pioneer in the study of gas clouds in galaxies and around stars Throughout his career he has also been deeply engaged with issues outside of academic research He worked on applied research projects for Bell Labs served on the board of directors for General Motors and devoted extensive effort to advising the government on science policy and defense This memoir traces his multifaceted career from its beginnings on the family farm in South Carolina Spanning decades of ground breaking research the book provides a hands on description of how working scientists and inventors get their ideas It also gives a behind the scenes look at the scientific community showing how scientists respond to new ideas and how they approach a variety of issues from priority and patents to the social and political implications of their work In addition Townes touches on the sociology of science uncovering some of the traditions and values that are invisible to an outsider A towering and energetic figure Townes has explored or pioneered most of the roles available to the modern scientist In addition to fundamental research he was actively involved in the practical uses of the laser and in the court cases to defend the patent rights He was a founding member of the Jaxons an influential group of scientists that independently advises the government on defense policy and he played an active part in scientific decisions and policies from the Truman through the Reagan administration This lively memoir packed with first hand accounts and historical anecdotes is an invaluable resource for anyone interested in the history of science and an inspiring example for students considering scientific careers Maser Sources in Astrophysics Malcolm Gray,2012-04-26 Written for postgraduates and researchers this is an up to date survey of astrophysical maser sources and their use as astronomical tools Lasers and Masers ,1962 Lasers and Masers: a Continuing Bibliography United States. National Aeronautics and Space Administration,1965 Beam : The Race to Make the Laser Jeff Hecht,2005-02-11 In 1954 Charles Townes invented the laser s microwave cousin the maser The next logical step was to extend the same physical principles to the shorter wavelengths of light but the idea did not catch fire until October 1957 when Townes asked Gordon Gould about Gould s research on using light to excite thallium atoms Each took the idea and ran with it The independent minded Gould sought the fortune of an independent inventor the professorial Townes sought the fame of scientific recognition Townes enlisted the help of his brother in law Arthur Schawlow and got Bell Labs into the race Gould turned his ideas into a patent application and a million dollar defense contract They soon had company Ali Javan one of Townes s former students began pulling 90 hour weeks at Bell Labs with colleague Bill Bennett And far away in California a bright young physicist named Ted Maiman became a very dark horse in the race While Schawlow proclaimed that ruby could never make a laser Maiman slowly convinced himself it would As others struggled with recalcitrant equipment and military secrecy Maiman built a tiny and elegant device that fit in the palm of his hand His ruby laser worked the first time he tried it on May 16 1960 but afterwards he had to battle for acceptance as the man who made the first laser Beam is a fascinating tale of a remarkable and powerful invention that has become a symbol of modern technology
