Cytotoxic Payloads for Antibody-Drug Conjugates David Thurston,Paul J M Jackson,2019-07-11 Antibody drug conjugates ADCs represent one of the most promising and exciting areas of anticancer drug discovery Five ADCs are now approved in the US and EU i e ado trastuzumab emtansine Kadcyla™ brentuximab vedotin Adcetris™ inotuzumab ozogamicin Besponsa™ gemtuzumab ozogamicin Mylotarg™ and moxetumomab pasudotox tdfk Lumoxiti and over 70 others are in various stages of clinical development with impressive interim results being reported for many The technology is based on the concept of delivering a cytotoxic payload selectively to cancer cells by attaching it to an antibody targeted to antigens on the cell surfaces This approach has several advantages including the ability to select patients as likely responders based on the presence of antigen on the surface of their cancer cells and a wider therapeutic index given that ADC targeting enables a more efficient delivery of cytotoxic agents to cancer cells than can be achieved by conventional chemotherapy thus minimising systemic toxicity Although there are many examples of antibodies that have been developed for this purpose along with numerous linker technologies used to attach the cytotoxic agent to the antibody there is presently a relatively small number of payload molecules in clinical use The purpose of this book is to describe the variety of payloads used to date along with a discussion of their advantages and disadvantages and to provide information on novel payloads at the research stage that may be used clinically in the future
