Age of Díaz Michael Johns,2011-05-18 Mexico City assumed its current character around the turn of the twentieth century during the dictatorship of Porfirio Díaz 1876 1911 In those years wealthy Mexicans moved away from the Zócalo the city s traditional center to western suburbs where they sought to imitate European and American ways of life At the same time poorer Mexicans many of whom were peasants crowded into eastern suburbs that lacked such basic amenities as schools potable water and adequate sewerage These slums looked and felt more like rural villages than city neighborhoods A century and some twenty million more inhabitants later Mexico City retains its divided robust and almost labyrinthine character In this provocative and beautifully written book Michael Johns proposes to fathom the character of Mexico City and through it the Mexican national character that shaped and was shaped by the capital city Drawing on sources from government documents to newspapers to literary works he looks at such things as work taste violence architecture and political power

during the formative D az era From this portrait of daily life in Mexico City he shows us the qualities that make a Mexican a Mexican and have created a culture in which as the Mexican saying goes everything changes so that everything remains the same
