The Bear Watches the Dragon Alexander Lukin, 2016-09-16 China and Russia two giants dominating the Eurasian landmass share a history of understanding and misunderstanding whose nuances are not well appreciated by outsiders In his interpretation of this relationship from the Russian point of view Alexander Lukin shows how over the course of three centuries China has seemed alternately to threaten mystify imitate mirror and rival its northern neighbor Lukin traces not only the changing dynamics of Russian Chinese relations but the ways in which Russia s images of China more profoundly reflected Russia s self perception and its perceptions of the West as well As both Russia and China take distinctive approaches to political and economic development and integration in the twenty first century global economy this reinterpretation of their relationship is timely and valuable not only to historians but to all students of international affairs

Russian Security Strategy Under Putin R. Craig Nation, Dmitrii Trenin, 2007 Increasingly the armed forces and a vision of security as emphasizing hard rather than soft security have come to the fore in Moscow s national security policy process Due to this institutionally driven vision Russia sees itself facing increasing military political and strategic threats all along its frontiers Recent Russian policies reflect that perception and Moscow s adaptation to it We may think this threat perception to be misguided even bizarrely misconceived given our own beliefs about what American policy is and what its goals are Nevertheless the strongest forces in the Russian policy community have bought into that vision and have made policy accordingly Therefore the key point that readers should take as they read these papers together is that Russian and American perspectives and policies are mutually interactive They do not take place in a strategic vacuum devoid of all context and develop to a considerable degree in response to the other side s activities and rhetoric Neither we nor Russia can act in disregard of the fact that our actions have consequences and that other state actors in Eurasia as elsewhere also have a vote in shaping the context of international affairs and in the day to day conduct of U S and Russian national security policy
