Visions of the Human Tom Slevin, 2015-05-28. In what ways do the artistic avant-garde's representations of the human body reflect the catastrophe of World War I? The European modernists were inspired by developments in the nineteenth century yielding new forms of knowledge about the nature of reality and repositioning the human body as the new object of knowledge. New visions of the human subject were created within this transformation. However, modernity's reactionary political climate for which World War I provided a catalyst transformed a once liberal ideal between humanity, environment and technology into a tool of disciplinary rationalisation. Visions of the Human considers the consequences of this historical moment for the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. It explores the ways in which the technologies of the self that inspired the avant-garde were increasingly instrumentalised by conservative politics, urbanism, consumer capitalism and the society of the spectacle. This is an engaging and powerful study which challenges prior ideas and explores new ways of thinking about modern visual culture.

Altruism and Christian Ethics Colin Grant, 2000-11-16. Separated from its anchorage in religion, ethics has followed the social sciences in seeing human beings as fundamentally characterised by self-interest, so that altruism is either naively idealistic or arrogantly self-sufficient. Colin Grant contends that as a modern secular concept, altruism is a parody on the self-giving love of Christianity, so that its dismissal represents a social levelling that loses the depths that theology makes intelligible and religion makes possible. The Christian affirmation is that God is characterised by self-giving love (agape), then expected of Christians. Lacking this theological background, the focus on self-interest in sociobiology and economics and on human realism in the political focus of John Rawls or the feminist sociability of Carol Gilligan finds altruism naive or a dangerous distraction from real possibilities of mutual support. This book argues that to dispense with altruism is to dispense with God and with the divine transformation of human possibilities.

Primate Visions Donna J. Haraway, 2013-01-11. Haraway's discussions of how scientists have perceived the sexual nature of female primates opens a new chapter in feminist theory, raising unsettling questions about models of the family and of heterosexuality in primate research.

Vision and Motor Control L. Proteau, D. Elliott, 1992-02-20. Since the classic studies of Woodworth (1899), the role of vision in the control of movement has been an important research topic in experimental psychology. While many early studies were concerned with the relative importance of vision and kinesthesia and/or the time it takes to use visual information, recent theoretical and technical developments have stimulated scientists to ask questions about how different sources of visual information contribute to motor control in different contexts. In this volume, articles are presented that provide a broad coverage of the current research and theory on vision and human motor learning and control. Many of the contributors are colleagues that have met over the years at the meetings and conferences concerned with human movement. They represent a wide range of affiliation and background including kinesiology, physical education, neurophysiology, cognitive psychology, and neuropsychology. Thus, the topic of vision and motor control is addressed from a number of different perspectives. In general, each author sets an empirical and theoretical framework for their topic and then discusses current work from their own laboratory and how it fits into the larger context. A synthesis chapter at the end of the volume identifies commonalities in the work and suggests directions for future experimentation.

Sir John's Vision Paul Davies, George R. Ellis, Keith Ward, 2018-08-13 In 2017, the year marking the 105th anniversary of the birth of Sir John Templeton, a group of scientists, scholars, and advisors who knew him personally gathered in Lyford Cay in the Bahamas. Their purpose was to discuss how the Foundation that bears his name could best extend his philanthropic vision into the twenty-first century. This volume is a result of that meeting: a collection of thirteen essays written by experts in fields that most fascinated Sir John. The contributors assess the Foundation's fidelity to its founder's intent, chart promising avenues for future grantmaking, and champion Sir John's contrarian mission of unlocking life's deepest mysteries. The members of the John Templeton Foundation are the custodians of Sir John's vision: bold in its aspiration, humble in its approach, charged with using the tools of science to advance the frontiers of the spirit. May the essays collected here serve as inspiration as we carry that vision forward.

Human Flourishing in a Technological World Jens Zimmermann, 2023-09-21 Human Flourishing in a Technological World addresses fundamental questions about human identity and flourishing in the light of recent technological advances. It includes the text of a lecture by virtual reality engineer and computer scientist Jaron Lanier and a discussion between Lanier and other contributors.

Science Fiction, Ethics and the Human Condition Christian Baron, Peter Nicolai Halvorsen, Christine Cornea, 2017-07-10 This book explores what science fiction can tell us about the human condition in a technological world with the ethical dilemmas and consequences that this entails. This book is the result of the joint efforts of scholars and scientists from various disciplines. This interdisciplinary approach sets an example for those who like us have been busy assessing the ways in which fictional attempts to fathom the possibilities of science and technology speak to central concerns about what it means to be human in a contemporary world of technology and which ethical dilemmas it brings along. One of the aims of this book is to demonstrate what can be achieved in approaching science fiction as a kind of imaginary laboratory for experimentation where visions of human or even post-human life under various scientific, technological, or natural conditions that differ from our own situation can be thought through and commented upon. Although a scholarly work, this book is also designed to be accessible to a general audience that has an interest in science fiction as well as to a broader academic audience interested in ethical questions     The Vision Thing Thomas Singer, 2014-01-14 Contemporary politics goes on at a mythic level This is the provocative argument put forward in this unique book which results from the collaboration of practising politicians organisational and political consultants scholars of mythology and culture and Jungian analysts from several countries The first part of the book focuses on leadership and vision and features a reflection on myth and leadership by former U S Senator Bill Bradley The second part deals with the way the theme of the one and the many works itself out in politics today From the perspective of the many there are chapters on factionalism ethnic strife genocide and multiculturalism From the perspective of the one there are chapters on the economic myth and gender politics showing how these bring coherence to today s confused political scene culminating in the suggestion that the modern political psyche is itself in the midst of a rite of passage The relevance of the book to the practice and study of politics mainstream and marginal cannot be overemphasised and the book will provide stimulating reading for practitioners and students in these areas as well as for those engaged in psychological work such as therapy counselling or analysis
