Process Thought And Christian Faith:

Christianity and Process Thought Joseph A. Bracken, 2008-03-16 Joseph A Bracken S J introduces the process relational metaphysics of Alfred North Whitehead and other process theologians as he tries to reconcile the sometimes conflicting views of traditional Christian doctrines and the modern scientific world To present this material in an accessible manner to a wider audience Bracken reworks Whitehead's model of the God-world relationship showing that God is involved in an ongoing ever-changing relationship with humans and other creatures He also discusses the work of other contemporary theologians to help Christians come to terms with their role in our multi-dimensional pluralistic society Bracken examines divine and human creativity the collective power of good and evil divine providence and human freedom prayer altruism and the basic question What is truth He shows how Whitehead's process thought approach to these issues can in fact harmonize traditional Christian beliefs and contemporary culture benefiting both faith and reason Understanding the God-world relationship subtly influences our attitude toward ourselves toward other human beings and indeed toward all of God's creatures says Bracken His revision of Whitehead's metaphysical vision in terms of a cosmic community shows how modern views of the world and God can be accepted and kept in balance with the traditional biblical views found in the Christian faith and how this balance can help Christians make better choices in a world shaped both by contemporary natural science and by traditional Christian spirituality

The Christian Church as Social Process Norman Pittenger, 2017-05-03 One of the most important movements in recent philosophy and theology is the process thought associated with the name Alfred North Whitehead the distinguished Cambridge thinker who died in 1947 In North America this conceptuality is increasingly being used by Christian theologians for the restatement of Christian faith worship and practice The present book is the first attempt by a British theologian to apply this kind of thinking to the interpretation of the church itself In an earlier book The Last Things in a Process Perspective Dr Pittenger interpreted death judgement heaven and hell in this new way Now he turns to the church its nature its purpose its ministry its concern for the world its interest in social issues and seeks to show how the Christian fellowship is a social process in which the Love which is God and which was incarnate in Jesus is continuing to work in the affairs of men through the community which took to Jesus as its Lord and Master Process thought is at last receiving its due recognition in Britain In this book the reader will find an application of that conceptuality to the institution which all too often has been looked upon as wooden and static The contention of the author is that the church rightly understood is a dynamic living vital and forward looking fellowship He believes that acceptance of this truth will revitalize the discipleship of Christians and will attract and interest those who hitherto have

Cobb, 2016-07-21 The movement of process theology is brought into creative interaction with political theology in this exciting new work by distinguished author John B Cobb Jr Confronted with the critical problems facing the global environment the author seeks to overcome the abstractness that has kept process thought from achieving practical influence Cobb reviews contemporary political theology in the works of major European theologians Johann Baptist Metz Jürgen Moltmann and Dorothee Sölle then surveys the movement in recent German theology He examines the challenge of political theology in the tradition of the Chicago school and advocates broadening the horizons of political theology into the formulation of an ecological rather than a sociological theology Process Theology as Political Theology responds to the challenge of providing a theological base for the Christian activist Pastors seminarians and students will find it to be a stimulating evolutionary work derived from the author
