Processes Of Animal Memory:

Processes of Animal Memory (PLE: Memory) Douglas Medin, William Roberts, Roger Davis, 2014-05-09 Originally published in 1976 this volume contains new and original contributions of the time addressed to a related set of ideas concerning processes of memory in animals The theme is that animals remember and that theories of animal learning must take this into account as well as the coding processes that have been assumed to be specific to human beings The focus of the book is on processes and some progress is reported in differentiating types of memory The emphasis in applying animal work to studies of human memory is made not in terms of paradigms but in terms of processes implicated via performance in a variety of tasks Also many of the chapters reflect the usefulness of applying a memory framework to a variety of nonmemory paradigms This work will be essential reading for all those interested in animal as well as human memory and provided the most up to date and broadest examination of animal memory processes at the time from both a theoretical and conceptual framework Processes of Animal Memory Douglas L. Animal Memory Douglas L. Medin, William Albert Roberts, Roger T. Davis, 1976 Information Processing in Animals N. E. Spear, 2014-02-24 First published in 1982 During the past fifty years dramatic changes have occurred in the use of laboratory animals to study learning and memory Yet the basic reasons for this research diverse as they are have not changed At one extreme is the need for relatively direct application of findings with animal models to medical or educational problems of humans at the other extreme the quest for understanding animal behavior for its own sake It is probably fair to say that no chapters in this book represent either of these extremes although in each case the author's purposes can be said to be like those of some scientists working in this area fifty years ago In contrast to this continuity of purpose the approach that scientists now take in this area of study is really quite different from that of most or all scientists in the 1930s

Memory Douglas L. Medin, William Albert Roberts, Roger T. Davis, 2014 Theories of Animal Memory Donald F. Kendrick, Mark E. Rilling, M. Ray Denny, 2014-04-04 First published in 1986 This book is concerned with the transition of animal learning from a strict stimulus response S R approach to a more cognitive approach In response to noted past research that was guided by some perspective or theoretical framework based partly on a combination of research results and individual opinions about what animals can do This volume was thus conceived as a collection of chapters in which animal memory researchers could publicly state their opinions about animal memory with little concern for substantiating them with test data This volume is organized in three main sections of three chapters each The first section The Grand Approach is a collection of chapters with a meta theoretical perspective The second section Memory Processes presents three chapters concerned with the processes properties and mechanisms of short term memory in animals The third section Theoretical Issues presents two highly developed theories of animal memory one based on pigeon short term memory experiments and one based on delayed alternation in the rat Memory Mechanisms K. Geoffrey White, Wickliffe C.

Abraham, Michael C. Corballis, 2014-02-25 Presenting the work of researchers who are at the forefront of the study of memory mechanisms this volume addresses a wide range of topics including physiological and biophysical studies of synaptic plasticity neural models of information storage and recall functional and structural considerations of amnesia in brain damaged patients and behavioral studies of animal cognition and memory The book's coverage of diverse approaches to memory mechanisms is intended to help dissolve the borders between behavioral psychology cognitive neuropsychology and neurophysiology developmental biology     The Processing of Memories (PLE: Memory) Norman E. Spear, 2014-05-09 Originally published in 1978 this volume contains the evidence that is most crucial for our understanding the processes of forgetting and retention Organized in terms of problem areas and issues that are particularly pertinent to understanding these processes the book deals with both animal and human studies The author begins by defining the topic and reviewing its historical development A theoretical orientation follows and then the author begins to address the major factors that determine what is and what is not remembered Although we cannot yet specify the principles from which we can predict when an episode once learned will be remembered well or forgotten entirely the author demonstrates that such principles are not that far away He considers the issues that must be resolved before such principles are established and in the course of doing so covers the major research on why we remember events and why they are forgotten     The Oxford Handbook of Comparative Cognition Thomas R. Zentall, Edward A. Wasserman, 2012-03-20 This comprehensive volume illustrates why an understanding of animal intelligence is essential in disclosing the nature of minds other than our own making it a fascinating volume for anyone curious about the state of modern comparative cognition     Learning and Memory Isidore Gormezano, Edward A. Honig,P. H. R. James,2013-10-22 Animal Memory is based on the proceedings of a symposium held at Dalhousie University in the summer of 1969 Each of the seven chapters provide broad coverage of the topic with which it is concerned and the experimental work reported is representative of the most significant developments in the field The book includes two studies on associative memory the memory of one event which is essential to its association over a delay with subsequent events One study shows that animals can remember events from one learning trial to the next and that their behavior will be determined largely by the sequences of trials with differing outcomes the other presents research on the association of flavors with toxicosis in a conditioning paradigm Separate chapters deal with retentive memory the retention and forgetting of learned behavior over time and the physiological basis of memory in terms of consolidation theory These studies demonstrate that animals do forget and examine theories of forgetting The final chapter provides a critical discussion based on all of the foregoing material in which the topics covered in the book are related to current work on human retention and forgetting     Memory Consolidation H. Weingartner,E. S. Parker,2014-03-18 First published in 1984 This volume was organized for students of human memory and related cognitive processes The issues deal not only with memory in unimpaired individuals but also with impaired patients and with consolidation in lower animals The chapters in this volume demonstrate that consolidation is a flourishing and controversial concept in memory research today More than ten years after the seminal book of M cGaugh and Herz questions about consolidation are re examined in light of current models of human memory its pathology and its modulation by drugs     Cognitive Processes of Nonhuman Primates Leonard Jarrard,2012-12-02 Cognitive Processes of Nonhuman Primates covers the proceedings of the Sixth Annual Symposium on Cognition held at Carnegie Mellon University on March 26 and 27 1970 The symposium focuses on the status of research dealing with complex behavioral processes of monkeys and apes providing insights into complex behavior of human and nonhuman primates Composed of nine chapters this book covers short term memory in the monkey and how this relates to human short term memory A chapter compares memory deficits that accompany brain dysfunction in animals and man The following chapters discuss the analysis of the development of language in a young female chimpanzee and the cogent analysis of interaction between habits and concepts in the monkey The effects of early deprived and enriched environment on later complex behavioral processes of monkeys are also explained Moreover this book goes on examining the nonhuman brain capacities and the continuities with human behavior It also discusses important research comparing delayed
