

PRODRUG FOR OCULAR DELIVERY

Major challenges in ocular drug delivery include tightness of corneal epithelium, pre-corneal drug elimination. As a result, less than 10% of drug reaches the intracocular tissues.

Measures taken in improving the bioavailability of the ocular delivery-

- First, extending the drug residence time in the conjunctival sac.
- Second improving penetration of drug across corneal barrier.

Ocular absorption of a drug can be enhanced substantially by increasing its lipophilicity, which can be achieved with prodrug applications. Key requirements for ocular Prodrugs involve good stability and solubility in aqueous solutions to enable formulation, sufficient lipophilic properties to penetrate through the cornea, low irritation profile, and ability to release the parent drug within the eye at a rate that meets the therapeutic need.
