Making Managers in Canada, 1945-1995 Jason Russell,2018-06-14 Management education and training was a key influence on Canadian capital and labour in the post World War II decades however it has been the subject of comparatively little academic inquiry In many ways historians have frequently learned about management behavior in unionized workplaces by examining labor management relations The management experience has thus often been seen through the eyes of rank and file workers rather than from the perspective of managers themselves This book discusses how managers were trained and educated in Canada in the years following the Second World War Making Managers in Canada 1945 1995 seeks to shed light on the experience of workers who have not received much attention in business history managers This book approaches management training from both institutional and social history perspectives Drawing from community colleges universities and companies in British Columbia Ontario and Qu bec this book reveals the nature of management education and training in English and French Canada It integrates institutional analysis and examines how factors such as gender and social class shaped the development of Canadian management in the post war years and illustrates the various international influences on Canadian management education

Cities of Oil Timothy Cobban,2014-01-31 Cities of Oil is the first sustained historical account of the development of the early Canadian petroleum refining and manufacturing industry In it Timothy W Cobban documents the industry s development in southern Ontario from its beginnings in the 1850s to its later expansion on the outskirts of London to Petrolia and finally to Sarnia He accounts for all of the industry s important developments and innovations particularly the role played by municipalities in fostering its growth Using extensive archival research Cobban concludes that municipalities can stimulate the accelerated sustained development of local industry sectors thus challenging the dominant view that the influence of municipalities on economic growth is marginal Cities of Oil demonstrates the importance of accommodating the land and infrastructure needs of industry at critical junctures and implementing land use policies that encourage the dense clustering of industries This book will be essential reading for those seeking a greater understanding of industrial growth in the province of Ontario
