

Steps you can take to help mothers exclusively breastfeed successfully

Pre-childbirth

- ✓ Advise mothers to take good care of themselves, eat healthy and avoid stress.
- ✓ Recommend breastfeeding classes where and when available.

- ✓ Advise mothers to tell immediate family members about the plan to breastfeed so they can also provide support.
- ✓ Highlight that breast milk is the ideal food for infants.

Day of childbirth

- ✓ Ask mothers to be surrounded by their family members for emotional support.
- ✓ When the baby is born, make sure the baby is dried immediately and thoroughly, before placing the baby on the mother's bare chest for skin-to-skin contact.
- ✓ Keep the baby warm by covering them with a clean sheet.
- ✓ Give the baby enough time and patience to start feeding. Most babies start exhibiting feeding cues within 60 to 90 minutes after birth, and some may take longer.
- ✓ If the baby is born preterm or low-birthweight, practice Kangaroo Mother Care (KMC). WHO recommends KMC at least 20 hours a day for maximum health benefits of the baby.
- ✓ If there's difficulty in the first breast feed, recommend coaching from a midwife, nurse or lactation specialist to help with breast milk expression.

Post-childbirth

- ✓ Advise that family support is crucial for successful exclusive breastfeeding.
- ✓ Advise mothers to get plenty of rest, drink a lot of water and eat healthy.
- ✓ Advise all caregivers to not replace breast milk with infant formula or any solid foods, as this is potentially harmful to the baby. Breast milk contains antibodies and nutrients that are essential for the baby's health. WHO recommends exclusive breastfeeding for the first six months of life for maximum health benefits.
- ✓ Ensure rooming-in of mothers and their babies during the hospital stay. It's recommended to feed the baby on a need-based frequency, with feeding switched from one breast to the other.

Programmes To Promote Breastfeeding:

Programmes to Promote Breastfeeding Derrick Brian Jelliffe, 1988 The value of breastfeeding human infants is clear as it meets the need for nutrition protection against infection child spacing and mother baby attachment Programs designed to promote breastfeeding exist throughout the world This book examines these programs including small scale groups that are initiated by concerned health professionals as well as the role of breastfeeding organizations and mothers support groups Experts from different parts of the world give accounts of programs in their own countries and bring new perspectives to such topics as the influence of the health services training people to help mothers to breastfeed practical management surveillance of the marketing of infant formulas and legislation and services for mothers at work An assessment of policy needs and strategies for the development of future programs rounds out this broad and thorough work Theory- and Evidence-Based Health Promotion Program Planning; Intervention Mapping Maria E. Fernandez, Robert A. C. Ruiter, Christine Margaret Markham, Gerjo Kok, 2021-01-12 The Support of Breastfeeding Rebecca F. Black, Leasa Jarman, Jan Simpson, 1998 The Support of Breastfeeding explores cultural support for and attitudes toward breastfeeding advantages and disadvantages of artificial feeding and breastfeeding support policies and resources The exams at the end of Modules 1 2 3 and 4 while still useful in preparing For The IBCLC exam are not eligible for CERPS or Continuing Education credits for registered dietitians or nurses The Lactation Specialist Self Study Series is comprised of four modules Module 1 The Support of Breastfeeding 0 7637 0208 0 Module 2 The Process of Breastfeeding 0 7637 0195 5 Module 3 The Science of Breastfeeding 0 7637 0194 7 Module 4 The Management of Breastfeeding 0 7637 0193 9 the modules may be purchased separately or as a complete set 0 7637 1974 9 Marketing and Promotion of Infant Formula in Developing Countries United States. Congress. House. Committee on Foreign Affairs. Subcommittee on International Economic Policy and Trade, 1980 Breastfeeding and HIV/AIDS Edith White, 1999-01-01 The spread of the AIDS virus has introduced a new element into the formula versus breastfeeding controversy Mothers particularly those in developing nations have been urged to breastfeed in order to better nourish their infants and protect them from disease or contaminants in the water used to prepare formula Now however mothers and healthcare workers must consider the danger of transmitting AIDS via breastfeeding When HIV infected women nurse their children they significantly increase the risk of transmitting the virus The issue is further complicated in countries where the alternatives are not very promising and in cultures that stigmatize women for even undergoing AIDS testing This informative analysis includes the development of research into HIV and breastfeeding the medical and political questions surrounding the controversy and options and solutions for women to consider in feeding their infants Fully indexed this book is an important contribution to the social and medical studies of one of the most tragic facets of the HIV AIDS epidemic Nutrition for Growth Year of Action, 2021-07-16 This advocacy brief is organized into two separate papers The first half acts as a standalone briefing that highlights the importance of the Nutrition for Growth N4G Year of Action positions breastfeeding within its universal health coverage pillar and organizes the SMART breastfeeding recommendations into their corresponding N4G commitment types The latter half provides the rationale for each of the pledges and signposts towards helpful resources including official guidance notes and case studies to support country implementation
