Programs to Reduce Teen Dating Violence and Sexual Assault Arlene N. Weisz, Beverly M. Black, 2009-05-05 Arlene Weisz and Beverly Black interview practitioners from more than fifty dating violence and sexual assault programs across the United States to provide a unique resource for effective teen dating violence prevention Enhancing existing research with the shared wisdom of the nation s prevention community Weisz and Black describe program goals and content recruitment strategies membership structure and community involvement in practitioners own words Their comprehensive approach reveals the core techniques that should be a part of any successful prevention program including theoretical consistency which contributes to sound content development and peer education and youth leadership which empower participants and keep programs relevant Weisz and Black show that multisession programs are most useful in preventing violence and assault because they enable participants to learn new behaviors and change entrenched attitudes Combining single and mixed gender sessions as well as steering discussions away from the assignment of blame also yield positive results The authors demonstrate that productive education remains sensitive to differences in culture and sexual orientation and includes experiential exercises and role playing Manuals help in guiding educators and improving evaluation but they should also allow adolescents to direct the discussion Good programs regularly address teachers and parents Ultimately though Weisz and Black find that the ideal program retains prevention educators long after the apprentice stage encouraging self evaluation and new interventions based on the wisdom that experience brings

Childhood Deployed Susan Shepler, 2014-06-06 Childhood Deployed examines the reintegration of former child soldiers in Sierra Leone Based on eighteen months of participant observer ethnographic fieldwork and ten years of follow up research the book argues that there is a fundamental disconnect between the Western idea of the child soldier and the individual lived experiences of the child soldiers of Sierra Leone Susan Shepler contends that the reintegration of former child soldiers is a political process having to do with changing notions of childhood as one of the central structures of society For most Westerners the tragedy of the idea of child soldier centers around perceptions of lost and violated innocence In contrast Shepler finds that for most Sierra Leoneans the problem is not lost innocence but the horror of being separated from one's family and the resulting generational break in youth education Further Shepler argues that Sierra Leonean former child soldiers find themselves forced to strategically perform or refuse to perform as the child soldier Western human rights initiatives expect in order to most effectively gain access to the resources available for their social reintegration The strategies don't always work in some cases Shepler finds Western human rights initiatives do more harm than good While this volume focuses on the well known case of child soldiers in Sierra Leone it speaks to the larger concerns of childhood studies with a detailed ethnography of people struggling over the situated meaning of the categories of childhood It offers an example of the cultural politics of childhood in action in which the very definition of childhood is at stake and an important site of political contestation Reading Programs for Young Adults Martha Seif Simpson, 2015-11-16
