Desires of Credit in Early Modern Theory and Drama Brian Sheerin, 2016-04-28 Desires of Credit in Early Modern Theory and Drama traces the near simultaneous rise of economic theory literary criticism and public theater in London at the turn of the seventeenth century and posits that connecting all three is a fascination with creating something out of nothing simply by acting as if it were there Author Brian Sheerin contends that the motivating force behind both literary and economic inquiry at this time was the same basic quandary about the human imagination specifically how investments of belief can produce tangible consequences Just as speculators were realizing the potency of collective imagination on economic circulation readers and dramatists were becoming newly introspective about whether or not the lies of literature could actually be morally profitable Could one actually benefit by taking certain fictions seriously Each of the five chapters examines a different dimension of this question by highlighting a particular dramatization of economic trust on the Renaissance stage in plays by Marlowe Shakespeare Heywood Dekker and Jonson The book fills a gap in current scholarship by keeping economic and dramatic interests rigorously grounded in early modern literary criticism but also by emphasizing the productive nature of debt in a way that resonates with recent economic sociology
