Sentimental Confessions Spiritual Narratives Of Nineteenth Century African American Women:

Sentimental Confessions Joycelyn Moody, 2003 Sentimental Confessions is a groundbreaking study of evangelicalism sentimentalism and nationalism in early African American holy women's autobiography. At its core are analyses of the life writings of six women: Maria Stewart, Jarena Lee, Zilpha Elaw, Nancy Prince, Mattie J. Jackson, and Julia Foote, all of which appeared in the mid-nineteenth century. Joycelyn Moody shows how these authors appropriated white sanctioned literary conventions to assert their voices and to protest the racism, patriarchy, and other forces that created and sustained their poverty and enslavement. In doing so, Moody also reveals the wealth of insights that could be gained from these kinds of writings if we were to acknowledge the spiritual convictions of their authors if we read them because not although they are holy texts. The deeply held passionately expressed beliefs of these women, says Moody, should not be brushed aside by scholars who may be tempted to view them as naïve or as indicative only of the racial class and gender oppressions these women suffered. In addition, Moody promotes new ways of looking at dictated narratives without relegating them to a status below self-authored texts. Helping to recover a neglected chapter of American literary history, Sentimental Confessions is filled with insights into the state of the nation in the nineteenth century. Sympathy and Revolution Jocelyn

Moody, University of Cape Town. Centre for African Studies, 2000 The Portable Nineteenth-Century African American Women Writers Hollis Robbins, Henry Louis Gates, Jr., 2017-07-25 A landmark collection documenting the social, political, and artistic lives of African American women throughout the tumultuous nineteenth century. Named one of NPR's Best Books of 2017, The Portable Nineteenth-Century African American Women Writers is the most comprehensive anthology of its kind, an extraordinary range of voices offering the expressions of African American women in print before, during, and after the Civil War. Edited by Hollis Robbins and Henry Louis Gates Jr., this collection comprises work from forty-nine writers arranged into sections of memoir, poetry, and essays on feminism, education, and the legacy of African American women writers. Many of these pieces engage with social movements like abolition, women's suffrage, temperance, and civil rights, but the thematic center is the intellect and personal ambition of African American women. The diverse selection includes well-known writers like Sojourner Truth, Hannah Crafts, and Harriet Jacobs, as well as lesser-known writers like Ella Sheppard, who offers a firsthand account of life in the world-famous Fisk Jubilee Singers. Taken together, these incredible works insist that the writing of African American women writers be read, remembered, and addressed. Nineteenth-Century American Women Writers and Theologies of the Afterlife Jennifer McFarlane-Harris, Emily Hamilton-Honey, 2021-07-12 This collection analyzes the theme of the afterlife as it animated nineteenth century American women's theology making and appeals for social justice. Authors like Harriet Beecher Stowe, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Martha Finley, Jarena Lee, Maria Stewart, Zilpha Elaw, Rebecca Cox Jackson, Catharine Maria Sedgwick, Elizabeth Palmer Peabody, Belinda Marden Pratt and others wrote to have a voice in the moral debates that were consuming churches and national politics. These texts are expressions of the lives and dynamic minds of women who developed sophisticated systematic spiritual and textual approaches to the divine to their denominations or religious traditions and to the mainstream culture around them. Women do not simply live out theologies authored by men. Rather, Nineteenth Century American Women Writers and Theologies of the Afterlife: A Step Closer to Heaven is grounded in the radical notion that the theological principles crafted by women and derived from women's experiences, intellectual habits and organizational capabilities are foundational to American literature itself. Storied Witness Kate Hanch, 2022-10-18 The voices of Black women have historically been silenced especially in theological and religious contexts. Prophets rarely have platforms; faithfulness to oneself, one's community and one's God does not often lead to prestige. Nineteenth century Black women preachers Zilpha Elaw, Julia Foote and Sojourner Truth are not usually presented in systematic theology classes or texts and not often cited in sermons for their biblical interpretations nor are they taught in church history courses. They should be. These women present a liberating view of God and love for self and neighbor despite circumstances that would destroy them or relegate them and their ideas to the margins. As Elaw, Foote and Truth preached, traveled and ministered, they constructed a theology that affirmed their belovedness as Black women and enabled them to be both pastoral and prophetic. They modeled a way to do theology that was faithful to the biblical witness and Christian history was pastorally attentive to their respective communities and themselves and identified and challenged the evils of their day. They interpreted Scripture to show that God favored them and loved them and their bodies even when the world said otherwise. They recognized that in order to be pastoral they must be prophetic, calling out structures of domination that would seek to harm. And as they preached a word of comfort to the oppressed, oppressors heard and still hear the judgment in their voices. Kate Hanch conducts a careful reading of these 19th century Black women preachers' narratives and their texts, both written and spoken, to make explicit their theology. At once a work of religious history, biography and constructive theology, Storied Witness calls attention to the essential lived witness of Zilpha Elaw, Julia Foote and Sojourner Truth. By paying attention to their stories, we discover and honor both their theology and their role as theologians. Thanks to their witness, we are challenged by a theology that testifies to a liberating Christianity in defiance of the dominant culture around them and us.

Race and Respectability in an Early Black Atlantic Cassander L. Smith, 2023-10-25 Race and Respectability in an Early Black Atlantic examines the means through which people of African descent embodied tenets of respectability as a coping strategy to navigate enslavement and racial oppression in the early Black Atlantic world. The term respectability politics refers to the way members of a minoritized population adopt the customs and manners of a dominant culture in order to gain visibility and combat negative stereotypes about their subject group Today respectability politics can be seen in how those within and outside Black communities police the behavior of Black celebrities critique protest movements and celebrate accomplishments by people of African descent who break racial barriers To study the origins of the complicated relationship between race and respectability Cassander L Smith shows that early American literatures reveal Black communities engaging with issues of respectability from the very beginning of the transatlantic slave trade Concerns about character and comportment influenced the literary production of Black Atlantic communities particularly in the long eighteenth century Uncovering the central importance of respectability as a theme shaping the literary development of cultures throughout the early Black Atlantic Smith illuminates the mechanics of respectability politics in a range of texts including poetry letters and life writing by Phillis Wheatley Olaudah Equiano and expatriates on the west coast of Africa in Sierra Leone Through these early Black texts Race and Respectability in an Early Black Atlantic considers respectability politics as a malleable strategy that has both energized and suppressed Black cultures for centuries The Curse of Caste; or The Slave Bride Julia C. Collins, 2006-10-16 In 1865 The Christian Recorder the national newspaper of the African Methodist Episcopal Church serialized The Curse of Caste or The Slave Bride a novel written by Mrs Julia C Collins an African American woman living in the small town of Williamsport Pennsylvania The first novel ever published by a black American woman it is set in antebellum Louisiana and Connecticut and focuses on the lives of a beautiful mixed race mother and daughter whose opportunities for fulfillment through love and marriage are threatened by slavery and caste prejudice The text shares much with popular nineteenth century women's fiction while its dominant themes of interracial romance hidden African ancestry and ambiguous racial identity have parallels in the writings of both black and white authors from the period Begun in the waning months of the Civil War the novel was near its conclusion when Julia Collins died of tuberculosis in November of 1865 In this first ever book publication of The Curse of Caste or The Slave Bride the editors have composed a hopeful and a tragic ending reflecting two alternatives Collins almost certainly would have considered for the closing of her unprecedented novel In their introduction the editors offer the most complete and current research on the life and community of an author who left few traces in the historical record and provide extensive discussion of her novel's literary and historical significance Collins's published essays which provide intriguing glimpses into the mind of this gifted but overlooked writer are included in what will prove to be the definitive edition of a major new discovery in African American literature Its publication contributes immensely to our understanding of black American literature religion women's history community life and race relations during the era of United States emancipation American Literary-Political Engagements William M. Etter, 2012-11-13 American Literary Political Engagements From Poe to James examines how authors in the nineteenth century United States often engaged the politics of their times through literature as they conceptualized political
