Serial Verb Constructions A Crosslinguistic Typology:

Serial Verb Constructions Aleksandra IľUľr'evna Aikhenval'd, R.M.W. Dixon, 2006 A serial verb construction is a sequence of verbs which acts together as one This outstanding book is the first to study the phenomenon across languages of different typological and genetic profiles The authors all experienced linguistic fieldworkers follow a unified typological approach and avoid formalisms Serial Verbs in White Hmong Nerida Jarkey, 2015-06-02 In Serial Verbs in White Hmong Nerida Jarkey investigates verb serialization a highly productive grammatical strategy in this dynamic Southeast Asian language in which multiple verbs are simply concatenated within a single clause to depict a single event The investigation identifies four major types of serial verb construction SVC in White Hmong and finds that the key function of all these types is to depict a single event in an elaborate and vivid way a much favoured method of description in this language These findings concerning the nature and function of SVCs in White Hmong contribute to broader discussions on the nature of events as both cognitive and cultural constructs Serial Verbs Aleksandra IľUľr'evna Aikhenval'd, 2018 This book provides an in depth typological account of the forms functions and histories of serial verb constructions in which several verbs combine to form a single predicate It uses an inductively based framework for the analysis and draws on data from languages with different typological profiles and genetic affiliations Multi-verb Constructions Alexandra Aikhenvald, Pieter Muysken, 2010-12-17 One of the most complex topics in the study of the indigenous languages of the Americas and indeed in the study of any language set is the complex behaviour of multi verb constructions In many languages several verbs can co occur in a sentence forming a single predicate This book contains a first survey of such constructions in languages of North Middle and South America Though it is not a systematic typological survey the combined insights from the various chapters give a very rich perspective on this phenomenon involving a host of typologically diverse constructions including serial verb constructions auxiliaries co verbs phasal verbs incorporated verbs etc Aikhenvald's long introduction puts the chapters into a single perspective A Grammar of Kilmeri Claudia Gerstner-Link, 2018-09-24 This book is a description of Kilmeri a language of Papua New Guinea based on the author's fieldwork The volume is dedicated to the detailed description of form and meaning and their interface which is supported through extensive illustration by examples The narrative structure of entire texts is accessible via a small collection of fully glossed personal and traditional stories included in the Online Supplement The typological evaluation of selected properties of Kilmeri rounds out the description of the language Clause Linkage in Cross-Linguistic Perspective Volker Gast, Holger Diessel, 2012-10-01 The volume is a collection of thirteen papers given at the Third Syntax of the World's Languages conference complemented with four additional papers as well as an introduction by the editors All contributions deal with clause combining focusing on one or both of the following two dimensions of analysis properties of the clauses involved types of dependency The studies are data driven and have a cross linguistic or typological orientation In addition to survey papers the volume contains in depth studies of particular languages mostly based on original data collected in recent field work The Manambu Language of East Sepik, Papua New Guinea Aleksandra IŋUŋr'evna Aikhenval'd, Jacklyn Yuamali Ala, Pauline Agnes Luma Laki, 2008-09-04 This book presents the first comprehensive description of the Manambu language of Papua New Guinea. Manambu belongs to the Ndu language family and is spoken by about 2 500 people in five villages in East Sepik Province, Ambunti district. The book is based entirely on the author's fieldwork.

Clause Chaining in the Languages of the World Hannah S. Sarvasy, Alexandra Y. Aikhenvald, 2025-02-25 The languages of the world make use of a variety of techniques for describing events and putting sentences together. This volume takes a typological approach to clause chaining, a fascinating feature of the grammar of hundreds of languages outside Europe, especially in the Asia Pacific region, East Africa, across Central Asia and the Americas. Clause chains consist of several dependent clauses and one main clause and are used to organize discourse and to foreground or background events and participants; they often go together with switch-reference marking, an indication of whether upcoming subjects will be co-referential with preceding subjects or not. The introductory chapter features a discussion of the typological properties of clause chaining with a brief overview of previous approaches to and investigations of clause chains, followed by an overview of their recurrent grammatical features; it ends with an appendix featuring notes for fieldworkers. The first part of the book explores general issues in clause chaining, including prosody, acquisition, and language contact and history; later parts then examine clause chaining and related phenomena in a wide range of languages from around the world.

Caused Accompanied Motion Anna Margetts, Sonja Riesberg, Birgit Hellwig, 2022-05-15 This volume investigates the linguistic expression of directed caused accompanied motion events, including verbal concepts like BRING and TAKE. Contributions explore how speakers conceptualise and describe these events across areally genetically and typologically diverse languages of the Americas, Austronesia, and Papua. The chapters investigate such events on the basis of spoken language corpora of endangered underdescribed languages, and in this way the volume showcases the importance of documentary linguistics for linguistic typology. The semantic domain of directed caused accompanied motion shows considerable crosslinguistic variation in how meaning components are conflated within single lexemes or distributed across morphemes or clauses. The volume presents a typology of common patterns and constraints in the linguistic expression of these events. The study of crosslinguistic event encoding provided in this volume contributes to our understanding of the nature, extent, and limits of linguistic and cognitive diversity.

Information Structure and Reference Tracking in Complex Sentences Rik van Gijn, Jeremy Hammond, Dejan Mati?, Saskia van Putten, Ana Vilacy Galucio, 2014-03-15 This volume is dedicated to exploring the crossroads where complex sentences and information management more specifically information structure and reference tracking come together. Complex sentences are a highly relevant but understudied domain for studying notions of IS and RT. On the one hand, a complex sentence can be studied as a mini-unit of discourse consisting of two or more elements describing events, situations, or processes with its own internal information structural and referential organization On the other hand complex sentences can be studied as parts of larger discourse structures such as narratives or conversations in terms of how their information structural characteristics relate to this wider context The book offers new perspectives for the study of the interaction between complex sentences and information management and moreover adds typological breadth by focusing on lesser studied languages from several parts of the world

Languages of Mainland Southeast Asia N.J. Enfield, Bernard Comrie, 2015-03-30 The studies in this book represent the rich diverse and substantial research being conducted today in the linguistics of Mainland Southeast Asia The chapters cover a broad scope Several studies address questions of language relatedness often challenging conventional assumptions about the status of language contact as an explanatory factor in accounting for linguistic similarities Several address the question of Mainland Southeast Asia as a linguistic area exploring new ways to imagine and define the boundaries and indeed the boundedness of a Mainland Southeast Asia area Two contributions rethink the received notion of the sesquisyllable with new empirical and theoretical angles And a set of chapters explores topics in the morphology and syntax of the region's languages sometimes challenging orthodox assumptions and claims about what a typical language of Mainland Southeast Asia is like Written by leading researchers in the field and with a substantial overview of current knowledge and new directions by the volume editors N J Enfield and Bernard Comrie this book will serve as an authoritative source on where the linguistics of Mainland Southeast Asia is at and where it is heading

The Oxford Handbook of Polysynthesis Michael Fortescue, Marianne Mithun, Nicholas Evans, 2017-09-28 This handbook offers an extensive crosslinguistic and cross theoretical survey of polysynthetic languages in which single multi morpheme verb forms can express what would be whole sentences in English These languages and the problems they raise for linguistic analyses have long featured prominently in language descriptions and yet the essence of polysynthesis remains under discussion right down to whether it delineates a distinct coherent type rather than an assortment of frequently co occurring traits Chapters in the first part of the handbook relate polysynthesis to other issues central to linguistics such as complexity the definition of the word the nature of the lexicon idiomaticity and to typological features such as argument structure and head marking Part two contains areal studies of those geographical regions of the world where polysynthesis is particularly common such as the Arctic and Sub Arctic and northern Australia The third part examines diachronic topics such as language contact and language obsolescence while part four looks at acquisition issues in different polysynthetic languages Finally part five contains detailed grammatical descriptions of over twenty languages which have been characterized as polysynthetic with special attention given to the presence or absence of potentially criterial features

Coding Participant Marking Gerrit J. Dimmendaal, 2009-04-22 Whereas Africa as a typological area is often associated with extensive verb morphology and verb serialization this collection of studies shows that there is tremendous typological diversity at the clausal level Verb serialization in the Khoisan area contrasts with extensive case marking in languages of northeastern Africa which also use

converbs and light verb plus coverb constructions Although the categorial distinction between nouns and verbs is generally clear in African languages a number of them nevertheless provide intricate analytical challenges in this respect Whereas some languages are strongly head marking at the clausal level others manifest an interesting mixture of alternative strategies for the coding of participants The analysis of information packaging and related issues such as split ergativity Differential Object Marking and discourse configurational properties also play a role in several contributions The collection contains not only innovative analyses for the respective language families these languages belong to but also material relevant for the current debate in theoretical linguistics concerning lexical specification as against construction based approaches towards argument structure

Pre-Historical Language Contact in Peruvian Amazonia Luis Miguel Rojas-Berscia, 2021-05-27 South America was populated relatively recently probably around 15 000 years ago Yet instead of finding a relatively small number of language families we find some 118 genealogical units So far the historical processes that underlie the current picture are not yet fully understood This book represents a preliminary attempt at understanding the socio historical dynamics behind language diversification in the region focusing on the Kawapaman languages particularly on Shawi The book provides an introduction to the ideas behind the flux approach of Dynamic linguistics and later concentrates on prehistorical language contact specifically in the northern Peruvian Andean sphere The number of studies presented shed light on a layered picture in which a number of Kawapaman lects were used in non polyglossic multilingual settings The book explores the potential contact relationships between Kawapaman languages Quechuan Aymaran Chachapuya Chol n Hibito Arawak Carib and Puelche The analysis draws on data collected in the field over a period of eight years 2012 2020 with both Shawi and Shiwilu speakers and includes the first comprehensive grammar sketch of Shawi

M. W. Dixon,2025-05-19 Speakers of Dyirbal in North Queensland Australia have an everyday language style which has been well described They also have an avoidance style called Jalnguy which must be used in the presence of certain tabooed kin such as the mother in law Jalnguy has the same grammar and phonology as the everyday style but the vocabularies are entirely different Jalnguy has only about one sixth as many lexemes as the everyday style with various techniques used to create a Jalnguy correspondent for each everyday style word The underlying semantic system of Dyirbal is thus realised at two levels of generality and is revealed through detailed study of the correspondences between them This monograph is the first comprehensive study of this in law avoidance language providing fascinating new insights into register variation and the complexities of kinship in Australian languages A New Grammar of Dyirbal R.
