Models And Myths In Canadian Sociology:

Models & Myths in Canadian Sociology Stephen D. Berkowitz, 1984-01-01 Law, Rhetoric and Irony in the Formation of Canadian Civil Culture Michael Dorland, Maurice René Charland, 2002-01-01 In Rhetoric Irony and Law in the Formation of Canadian Civil Culture Michael Dorland and Maurice Charland examine how over the roughly 400 year period since the encounter of First Peoples with Europeans in North America rhetorical or discursive fields took form in politics and constitution making in the formation of a public sphere and in education and language The study looks at how these fields changed over time within the French regime the British regime and in Canada since 1867 and how they converged through trial and error into a Canadian civil culture The authors establish a triangulation of fields of discourse formed by law as a technical discourse system rhetoric as a public discourse system and irony as a means of accessing the public realm as the key pillars upon which a civil culture in Canada took form in order to scrutinize the process of creating a civil culture By presenting case studies ranging from the legal implications of the transition from French to English law to the continued importance of the Louis Riel case and trial the authors provide detailed analyses of how communication practices form a common institutional culture As scholars of communication and rhetoric Dorland and Charland have written a challenging examination of the history of Canadian governance and the central role played by legal and other discourses in the formation of civil culture
