Producer / Consumer

- The Producer process takes in the number of items and the speed at which it will produce an item as parameters.
- The Buffer process implements a circular queue of size 20. Once the Buffer process detects that the queue has been emptied, it will send a signal to the two consumers to indicate that the buffer is empty.
- The two Consumers will run at different speeds as defined by a parameter passed to it. The two consumers should then terminate normally when the Buffer process informs that there are no more items to consume.
