The Production of Elliptic Interferences in Relation to Interferometry Carl Barus, 1911 The Production of Elliptic Interferences in Relation to Interferometry Carl Barus, 1912 The Production of Elliptic Interferences in Relation to Interferometry Carl Barus, 1913 The Production of Elliptic Interferences in Relation to Interferometry Carl Barus, 2008-10-07 Many of the earliest books particularly those dating back to the 1900s and before are now extremely scarce and increasingly expensive We are republishing these classic works in affordable high quality modern editions using the original text and artwork The Production of Elliptic Interferences in Relation to Interferometry. Part II ... Carl Barus, 1912 The Production of Elliptic Interferences in Relation to Interferometry \(Classic Reprint\) Carl Barus, 2015-07-21 Excerpt from The Production of Elliptic Interferences in Relation to Interferometry In connection with my work on the coronas as a means for the study of nucleation I came across a principle of interferometry which seemed of sufficient importance to justify special investigation This has been undertaken in the following chapters and what appears to be a new procedure in interferometry of great promise and varied application has been developed In case of the coronas there is a marked interference phenomenon superposed on the diffractions The present method is therefore to consist in a simplification or systematization of this effect by bringing two complete component diffraction spectra from the same source of light to interfere This may be done in many ways either directly or with a halved transmission or reflecting grating or by using modifications of the devices of Jamin Michelson and others for separating the components In the direct method chapters II and III a mirror immediately behind the grating returns the reflected diffracted and diffracted reflected rays to be superimposed for interference producing a series of phenomena which are eminently useful in addition to their great beauty In fact the interferometer so constructed needs but ordinary plate glass and replica gratings It gives equidistant fringes rigorously straight and their distance apart and inclination are thus measurable by ocular micrometry The fringes are duplex in character and an adjustment may be made whereby ten small fringes occupy the same space in the field as one large fringe so that sudden expansions within the limits of the large fringe as for instance in magnetostriction are determinable This has not been feasible heretofore Length and small angles seconds of arc are thus subject to micrometric measurement Finally the interferences are very easily produced and are strong with white light while the spectrum line may be kept in the field as a stationary landmark The limiting sensitiveness is half the wave length of light The theory of these phenomena has been worked out in its practical bearings advantageous instrumental equipment has been discussed and a number of incidental applications to test the apparatus have been made In much of this work including that of the first chapter on a modification of Rowland's spectrometer I had the assistance of my son Mr Maxwell Barus before he entered into the law The range of measurement of an instrument like the above is necessarily limited to about 1 cm and the component rays are not separated About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www

forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts (1) We have not used OCR (Optical Character Recognition), as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos. (2) In books where there are images such as portraits, maps, sketches, etc., we have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images so they represent accurately the original artefact. Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts, we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy.
