Black, 2012-12-06 swollen with Deutschmarks and yen newly created to purchase unwanted dollars from the markets When the Bundesbank and the Bank of Japan began to raise their interest rates to slow domestic monetary expansion the fabric of international monetary cooperation began to unravel Amid charge and counter charge by disgruntled finance ministers the dollar dropped further and interest rates jumped upward leading to panic in the stock market on Black Monday Fortunately a steady hand and generous supply of credit from the Federal Reserve System prevented massive bankruptcies among Wall Street brokerage houses and a collapse of the credit system But the world wide reverberations of the Wall Street crash exposed the underlying weaknesses of an economy based on foreign borrowing for all to see Furthermore the banking system is saddled with mountains of bad debts from the Third World and depressed parts of the American economy A new Administration entering office in 1989 must deal with these problems among others Businesses and state and local governments need to know whether to focus their efforts on tax policy investment and improvements in education and worker training or lobbying for protection from imports The papers in this volume were chosen to explain the causes of present competitive problems in American industry and the factors that can lead to their gradual solution Report of the

Singh, 2010-08-27 This book argues against the current view that competitiveness that is the competitiveness of the manufacturing sector matters to the long term health of the U S economy and particularly to its long term capacity to raise the standard of living of its citizens The book challenges the arguments popularized most recently by Paul Krugman that competitiveness is a dangerous obsession that distracts us from the question most central to solving the problem of stagnant real income growth namely what causes productivity growth especially in the service sector The central argument is that if the U S economy is to achieve full employment with rising real wages it is necessary to enhance the competitiveness of its tradable goods sector The book shows that current account deficits cannot be explained by macroeconomic mismanagement but are rather the consequence of an uncompetitive manufacturing sector It finds that the long term health of the manufacturing sector requires not only across the board policies to remedy problems of low or inefficient investment but also sectoral policies to address problems that are strategic to resolving the balance of payments problems Lessons are drawn from the experience of some European and Asian countries This book will be of interest to economists political scientists and business researchers concerned with the place of the manufacturing sector in overall health of the U S economy with issues of industrial policy and industrial restructuring and with the conditions for rising standards of living Candace Howes is Associate Professor Barbara Hogate Ferrin Chair Connecticut College Ajit Singh is Professor of Economics Queens College Cambridge
