Profiling Machines:

Profiling Machines Greg Elmer, 2003-12-23 The cultural and media studies perspectives on the technology of electronic consumer profiling In this book Greg Elmer brings the perspectives of cultural and media studies to the subject of consumer profiling and feedback technology in the digital economy He examines the multiplicity of processes that monitor consumers and automatically collect store and cross reference personal information When we buy a book at Amazon com or a kayak from L L Bean our transactions are recorded stored and deployed to forecast our future behavior thus we may receive solicitations to buy another book by the same author or the latest in kayaking gear Elmer charts this process explaining the technologies that make it possible and examining the social and political implications Elmer begins by establishing a theoretical framework for his discussion proposing a diagrammatic approach that draws on but questions Foucault's theory of surveillance In the second part of the book he presents the historical background of the technology of consumer profiling including such pre electronic tools as the census and the warranty card and describes the software and technology in use today for demographic mapping In the third part he looks at two case studies a marketing event sponsored by Molson that was held in the Canadian Arctic contrasting the attendees and the indigenous inhabitants and the use of cookies to collect personal information on the World Wide Web which along with other similar technologies automate the process of information collection and cross referencing Elmer concludes by considering the politics of profiling arguing that we must begin to question our everyday electronic routines
