

7. Implement Improvements

Put action plans into practice; work to navigate politics and secure resources; identify barriers to overcome; build buy-in to the program review results; and implement strategies for continuous improvement.

1. Plan the Process

Map out steps for process, develop timeline, build buy-in with all stakeholders, and explicitly identify desired outcomes of the self-study

2. Assemble and Educate the Self-Assessment Team

Determine who should be on the team and how to educate the team about the self-study process

3. Identify, Collect, and Organize Evidence

Define what constitutes evidence; then gather, collect, manage, and organize evidence

4. Conduct and Interpret Ratings Using Evaluative Evidence

Clarify team's rating criteria; employ a process for rating (small group, individual, staff); negotiate rating differences; and manage group ratings

6. Prepare a Report

Explain the process, evidence gathering, rating process, and evaluations; summarize strengths and weaknesses; describe the action plan; and draft an executive summary

5. Develop an Action Plan

Identify discrepancies, corrective action, and recommended steps (e.g., identify strengths, weaknesses, recommendations, benchmarks for achievement, resources, timeframe, and responsible individual)

Gelber, 2020-06-23 A comprehensive history of evaluation in American higher education In Grading the College Scott M Gelber offers a comprehensive history of evaluating teaching and learning in higher education He complicates the conventional narrative that portrays evaluation as a newfangled assault on the integrity of higher education while acknowledging that there are many compelling reasons to oppose those practices The evaluation of teaching and learning Gelber argues presented genuine dilemmas that have attracted the attention of faculty members and academic leaders since the 1920s Especially during the peak era of faculty authority that followed the end of the Second World War significant numbers of professors and administrators believed that evaluation might improve institutional performance reduce the bias inherent in traditional methods of supervision strengthen communication with laypersons and encourage a more deliberate focus on the distinctive goals of college Gelber reveals the extent to which professors and academic interest groups participated in the development of our most common evaluation instruments including student course questionnaires achievement tests surveys rubrics rankings and accreditation self studies Although these efforts may seem distant from the present era of shortsighted scrutiny and ill conceived comparisons Gelber demonstrates that the evaluation of college teaching and learning has long consisted of a set of intellectually sophisticated questions that have engaged and could continue to engage faculty members and their advocates By providing a deeper understanding of how evaluation operated before the dawn of high stakes accountability Grading the College seeks to promote productive conversations about current attempts to define and measure the purposes of American higher education Research in Education ,1974 Building and Leading New Academic Programs in Higher Education Gretchen Oltman,Jackie Clark,2025-02-18 Designing creating and leading new degree programs can be an arduous and unpredictable task for any college or university faculty member Faculty typically trained within a specific discipline and who are charged with creating new degree programs are rarely prepared for the process In addition to being ill prepared faculty and academic leaders often face administrative hurdles such as understanding complex approval processes conducting market research and preparing selling points to gain peer and administrative approval and ensuring new degrees and programs are seamlessly built into campus structures Building and Leading New Academic Programs in Higher Education A Practical Guide for Faculty is a practical handbook and necessary companion for any faculty member tasked with starting a new major or degree program at the college level from bachelors to doctoral Based on the practical lived experiences of the authors who have both proposed built and led new successful degree programs this book provides the structural insights and often unspoken list of chores faculty must consider when beginning a new college or university academic program Congressional Record United States.
