The British Defence of Egypt, 1935-40 Steve Morewood, 2004-11-25 A comprehensive and challenging analysis of the British defence of Egypt primarily against fascist Italy in the critical lead up period to the Second World War Culminating in the decisive defeat of the Italian military threat at Sidi Barrani in December 1940 this is a fascinating new contribution to the field The security of Egypt a constant of British imperial strategy is a curiously neglected dimension of the still burning appeasement debate Steven Morewood adds to the originality of his interpretation by suggesting the old view should be reinstated that Mussolini should and could have been stopped in his empire building at the Abyssinian hurdle Thereafter as Nazi Germany tore the Versailles peace settlement to shreds the drift to war accelerated as British resolve and credibility were brought into question The fascist dictators in Rome and Berlin held no respect for weakness and Mussolini became the conduit through which Hitler could apply pressure to a sensitive British interest through reinforcing Libya at critical moments

Royal Navy Strategy in the Far East

1919-1939 Andrew Field, 2004-05-20 Between the ending of the Great War and the start of the Second World War in 1939 the Royal Navy remained the largest in the world But with the League of Nations seeming to offer a solution to all future conflicts a country weary of war and without an obvious enemy there seemed no need for a large battlefleet The strategic focus shifted eastwards to Japan with its growing battlefleet as the new threat to the British Empire and to the Royal Navy's supremacy From 1924 a strategic plan War Memorandum Eastern was written and refined The plan called for the Royal Navy still the largest in the world even after the Washington Naval Treaties to move eastwards to a defended base at Singapore cut off Japan and force her battlefleet into a decisive fleet battle As a strategy War Memorandum Eastern had many flaws Its real importance lay in the fact that it provided a justification for the Royal Navy to maintain its leading position in the world and to be in the forefront of the development of new tactical thinking Through planning for a war with Japan the Royal Navy was able to test its readiness for a future war Many of the lessons learnt during this period were ultimately put to good use against a different foe in 1939

The Royal Navy and the Arctic Convoys Malcolm Llewellyn-Jones, 2013-05-13 Published here for the first time this volume presents a superb range of insights into this crucial effort of the Second World War This Naval Staff History describes the vital role of the Arctic Convoys 1941-1945 and was first issued by the Historical Section of the Admiralty as a confidential study for use within the Royal Navy in 1954 It grew out of the earlier Battle Summary No 22 compiled by Commander J Owen of the Admiralty's Historical Section and issued in 1943 to cover the convoys run to North Russia in the last half of 1942 and early 1943 That wartime Battle Summary was subsequently revised and expanded by Commander L J Pitcairn Jones to include all the main convoys run from August 1941 until the end of the war using all the historical records which were at hand after the war A new preface provides additional context for the convoys highlighting support provided to Russian forces in their struggle against Germany for the original Staff History was narrowly focused on the naval aspects of the Arctic Convoys to Russia This is an excellent resource for all students with a particular interest in the Arctic Convoys the Second World War and in maritime and military history

The Littorio Class Ermingo Bagnasco, Augusto de Toro, 2011-07-18 An important work for anyone interested in warship design the naval side of World War II in the Mediterranean or modern Italian history New York Military Affairs Symposium For its final battleship design Italy ignored all treaty restrictions on tonnage and produced one of Europe's largest and most powerful capital ships comparable with Germany's Bismarck class similarly built in defiance of international agreements The three ships of the Littorio class were typical of Italian design being fast and elegant but also boasting a revolutionary protective scheme which was tested to the limits as all three were to be heavily damaged in the hard fought naval war in the Mediterranean Roma had the unfortunate distinction of being the first capital ship sunk by guided missile These important ships have never been covered in depth in English language publications but the need is now satisfied in this comprehensive and convincing study by two of Italy's leading naval historians The book combines a detailed analysis of the design with an operational history evaluating how the ships stood up to combat It is illustrated with an amazing collection of photographs many fine line plans and colored artwork of camouflage schemes adding up to as complete a monograph on a single class ever published Among warship enthusiasts battleships enjoy a unique status As the great success of Seaforth's recent book on French battleships proves that interest transcends national boundaries and this superbly executed study is certain to become another classic in the field A very impressive piece of work

The Mediterranean Fleet, 1930-1939 Paul G. Halpern,2016-12-01 The Mediterranean Fleet entered the 1930s looking back to the lessons of Jutland and the First World War but also seeking to incorporate new technologies notably air power Unfortunately in the depression years of the early 1930s there was a lack of funds to remedy deficiencies The problem became critical during the Abyssinian crisis of 1935 The crisis wound down by mid 1936 but the respite did not last long In June 1936 the Spanish Civil War broke out and the Mediterranean Fleet was soon involved in evacuations of British and other endangered foreigners from Spanish ports as well as the protection of British flagged merchant ships in the war zone In addition to the Spanish Civil War there was an increase of tension with Germany in 1938 that culminated with the Czechoslovak crisis in September The situation of the Mediterranean Fleet and its possible actions had the Munich agreement not been reached are described The Spanish Civil War ended in 1939 with the victory of the Nationalists and the Mediterranean Fleet was again involved in evacuations By now the prospect of war with Germany and possibly Italy was quite clear and serious preparations for war continued The plans for war in the Mediterranean are reproduced in detail

British Battleship vs Italian Battleship Mark Stille,2020-01-23 During World War II s battle for control of the Mediterranean both the British and Italian navies planned to bring their battle fleets into play At the centre of both of these fleets was a core of battleships which both sides expected to play a decisive role in the conflict On 9 July 1940 the two navies met in the central Mediterranean as two Italian battleships faced off against three of their British counterparts Christened the Battle of Calabria the action allowed the ships to play to their strengths engaging in a long range gunnery duel the very thing they had been designed for Though both sides shot well the only hit was scored by Warspite on the Italian battleship Giulio Cesare The Italians were forced to withdraw and the action ended up being indecisive but it was the largest fleet action fought in the Mediterranean during the war As well as this battle there were other occasions during the war when both British and Italian battleships were present and influential but during which they never engaged each other directly the Battle of Spartivento on 27 November 1940 and the Battle of Cape Matapan on 28 29 March 1941 Packed with full colour artwork carefully selected archive photographs and expert analysis this title explores in detail the role played by British and Italian battleships in these encounters and their influence in the Mediterranean theatre of World War II
