

An aerial photograph of a city grid, likely New York City, viewed from a high angle. A bright, circular light source, possibly the sun, is positioned in the upper left quadrant, casting a long, diagonal beam of light across the city streets. The streets are arranged in a precise grid pattern, and the buildings are visible as small, dark shapes within the grid. The overall color palette is a mix of warm yellows and oranges from the light, and cooler greys and blues from the shadows and city structures.
