Sentimental Education The Story Of A Young Man:

Sentimental Education Gustave Flaubert, 2023-09-04 Gustave Flaubert's Sentimental Education or The History of a Young Man continues the captivating narrative of Frédéric Moreau's life and experiences. In the second volume of this classic novel, readers are further immersed in the complexities of Frédéric's character and the ever-changing social and romantic landscape of 19th-century France. Set against the backdrop of a rapidly evolving society, the story continues to explore themes of love, ambition, disillusionment, and personal growth. Frédéric's journey takes unexpected turns as he encounters new people and becomes entangled in various romantic relationships, each contributing to his development as a character. The second volume of Sentimental Education delves deeper into the moral dilemmas, social pressures, and emotional conflicts that shape Frédéric's path. It provides readers with a nuanced perspective on the complexities of human desires and the consequences of ambition in a changing world. Gustave Flaubert's storytelling invites readers to continue their exploration of Frédéric Moreau's life and the broader societal shifts that mark this era. It encourages reflection on the intricate interplay between personal aspirations and the forces of society, love, and disillusionment.

Sentimental Education Gustave Flaubert, 2024-01-02 A fresh and vivid translation of Flaubert's influential bildungsroman. Gustave Flaubert conceived Sentimental Education, his final complete novel, as the history of his own generation, one that failed to fulfill the promise of the Revolution of 1848. Published a few months before the start of the 1870 Franco-Prussian War, it offers both a sweeping panorama of French society over three decades and an intimate bildungsroman of a young man from a small town who arrives in Paris when protests against the monarchy are increasing. The novel's protagonist, Frédéric Moreau, alternates between aimlessness and ambition as he searches for a meaningful life through love affairs and republican politics. Flaubert's narrative includes scenes of high drama as scattered protests across Paris swell into revolution and quiet moments of self-aware romanticism, crafting a story that possesses the sweep and scope of a historical novel combined with deep emotion and scandalous intimacy. Suffused with tragedy and the poignancy of lost chances and wasted lives, Sentimental Education is sharpened by satirical observations of what Flaubert condemned as the Second Empire's endemic hypocrisy and willful blindness. This vibrant new translation by Raymond N. MacKenzie includes an extensive critical introduction and annotations to help the modern reader appreciate Flaubert's achievement. Sentimental Education intertwines the personal, the intimate, and the subjective with the political, social, and cultural embedding of Frédéric's story in the larger arc of what Flaubert saw as France's decline into mediocrity and imbecility in its politics and manners.

Sentimental education, or, The history of a young man Gustave Flaubert, 1904 Sentimental Education: The History of a Young Man (Complete) Gustave Flaubert, On the 15th of September 1840 about six o'clock in the morning the Ville de Montereau just on the point of starting was sending forth great whirlwinds of smoke in front of the Quai St Bernard People came rushing on board in breathless haste The traffic was obstructed by casks cables and baskets of linen The sailors answered nobody People jostled one another Between the two paddle boxes was piled up a heap of parcels and the uproar was drowned in the loud hissing of the steam which making its way through the plates of sheet iron enveloped everything in a white cloud while the bell at the prow kept ringing continuously At last the vessel set out and the two banks of the river stocked with warehouses timber yards and manufactories opened out like two huge ribbons being unrolled A young man of eighteen with long hair holding an album under his arm remained near the helm without moving Through the haze he surveyed steeples buildings of which he did not know the names then with a parting glance he took in the le St Louis the Cit N tre Dame and presently as Paris disappeared from his view he heaved a deep sigh Frederick Moreau having just taken his Bachelor s degree was returning home to Nogent sur Seine where he would have to lead a languishing existence for two months before going back to begin his legal studies His mother had sent him with enough to cover his expenses to Havre to see an uncle from whom she had expectations of his receiving an inheritance He had returned from that place only yesterday and he indemnified himself for not having the opportunity of spending a little time in the capital by taking the longest possible route to reach his own part of the country The hubbub had subsided The passengers had all taken their places Some of them stood warming themselves around the machinery and the chimney spat forth with a slow rhythmic rattle its plume of black smoke Little drops of dew trickled over the copper plates the deck quivered with the vibration from within and the two paddle wheels rapidly turning round lashed the water The edges of the river were covered with sand The vessel swept past rafts of wood which began to oscillate under the rippling of the waves or a boat without sails in which a man sat fishing Then the wandering haze cleared off the sun appeared the hill which ran along the course of the Seine to the right subsided by degrees and another rose nearer on the opposite bank It was crowned with trees which surrounded low built houses covered with roofs in the Italian style They had sloping gardens divided by fresh walls iron railings grass plots hot houses and vases of geraniums laid out regularly on the terraces where one could lean forward on one's elbow. More than one spectator longed on beholding those attractive residences which looked so peaceful to be the owner of one of them and to dwell there till the end of his days with a good billiard table, a sailing boat and a woman or some other object to dream about. The agreeable novelty of a journey by water made such outbursts natural. Already the wags on board were beginning their jokes. Many began to sing. Gaiety prevailed and glasses of brandy were poured out. Frederick was thinking about the apartment which he would occupy over there on the plan of a drama on subjects for pictures on future passions. He found that the happiness merited by the excellence of his soul was slow in arriving. He declaimed some melancholy verses. He walked with rapid step along the deck.

Sentimental Education; Or, the History of a Young Man Gustave Flaubert, 2018-09-22

Based on Flaubert's own youthful passion for an older woman, Sentimental Education was described by its author as the moral history of the men of my generation. It follows the amorous adventures of Frederic Moreau, a law student who, returning home to Normandy from Paris, notices Mme Arnoux, a slender dark woman several years older than himself. It is the beginning of an infatuation that will last a lifetime. He befriends her husband, an influential businessman, and as their paths cross and re-cross over the years, Mme Arnoux remains the constant, unattainable love of Moreau's life. Blending love story, historical authenticity, and satire, Sentimental Education is one of the great French novels of the nineteenth century. Includes vintage illustration.

Sentimental Education Gustave Flaubert, 2016-09-19

Excerpt from Sentimental Education: The Story of a Young Man. People rushed on board the vessel in frantic haste. The traffic was obstructed by casks, cables and baskets of linen. The sailors answered no questions. People jostled one another. Between the two paddle boxes was a heap of parcels. The clamour was drowned in the loud hissing of the steam, which, making its way through the plates of sheet iron, encompassed every thing in a white mist, while the bell at the prow kept continuously ringing. At last the vessel drew away, and the banks of the river, crowded with warehouses, timber yards and manufactories, opened out like two huge ribbons being unrolled.
