Nyamnjoh, 2013-07-04 This study of xenophobia and how it both exploits and excludes is an incisive commentary on a globalizing world and its consequences for ordinary people's lives Using the examples of Sub Saharan Africa's two most economically successful nations it meticulously documents the fate of immigrants and the new politics of insiders and outsiders As globalization becomes a palpable reality citizenship sociality and belonging are subjected to stresses to which few societies have devised a civil response beyond yet more controls At Home with Apartheid Rebecca Ginsburg, 2011-08-30 Despite their peaceful bucolic appearance the tree lined streets of South African suburbia were no refuge from the racial tensions and indignities of apartheid's most repressive years In At Home with Apartheid Rebecca Ginsburg provides an intimate examination of the cultural landscapes of Johannesburg's middle and upper middle class neighborhoods during the height of apartheid c 1960 1975 and incorporates recent scholarship on gender the home and family More subtly but no less significantly than factory floors squatter camps prisons and courtrooms the homes of white South Africans were sites of important contests between white privilege and black aspiration Subtle negotiations within the domestic sphere between white mostly female householders and their black domestic workers also primarily women played out over and around this space These seemingly mundane private conflicts were part of larger contemporary struggles between whites and blacks over territory and power Ginsburg gives special attention to the distinct social and racial geographies produced by the workers detached living quarters designed by builders and architects as landscape complements to the main houses Ranch houses Italianate villas modernist cubes and Victorian bungalows filled Johannesburg's suburbs What distinguished these neighborhoods from their precedents in the United States or the United Kingdom was the presence of the ubiquitous back rooms and of the African women who inhabited them in these otherwise exclusively white areas The author conducted more than seventy five personal interviews for this book an approach that sets it apart from other architectural histories In addition to these oral accounts Ginsburg draws from plans drawings and onsite analysis of the physical properties themselves While the issues addressed span the disciplines of South African and architectural history feminist studies material culture studies and psychology the book's strong narrative powerful oral histories and compelling subject matter bring the neighborhoods and residents it examines vividly to life
