Kids and Media in America Donald F. Roberts, Ulla G. Foehr, 2004. This 2003 book reports the only national random sample survey of US children and adolescents' use of all of the various media available to them, conducted in at least the past 30 years. In addition to providing the first comprehensive look at how media saturated our young people's lives have become, it is the first study to examine young people's overall media budgets and the first to attempt to describe distinctly different types of young media users. Extensive background information and chapters devoted to each of the various media, to the overall media budget, and to particular types of media users enables the authors to describe perhaps the most detailed map of US young people's media behavior ever assembled.

specific advertising structures The authors of the different countries had the same briefing as in the first volume What are the social cultural or religious features of advertising and advertising practices Are there any taboos Which legal restrictions apply What kind of advertising infrastructure is there Are there any institutions federations or boards of advertising Which media are readily available How are media data collected What are the methods of gaining advertising data How can specific target groups be addressed Are there any particular preferences concerning the use of media Assessing the choice of countries in the two volumes of Advertising Worldwide one has to conclude as a first resume that it is not primarily the more theoretical question of standardization or differentiation which dominates the advertising strategy at least for consumer goods but the very practical necessity of adapting to the respective specific advertising conditions of each country A standardized global even multinational advertising campaign has to be considered the exception rather than the rule
