Entrepreneurship is often cited as the single most important factor in economic development Although this contention is limited mostly to the realm of private business activities entrepreneurship is also present in governmental organizations Public entrepreneurs like their private counterparts are agents of change This study hypothesizes that although public entrepreneurship requires availability of capital and presence of educated public and administrators to be effective it demands also cultural values of individualism need for achievement and need for certainty Or in other words that culture and history matter The hypothesis is tested in four historically and culturally distinctive regions in Poland The research shows that despite forty five years of communist rule stressing the uniformity of the new socialist society differences in the realm of cultural and political values remained These in turn influenced other areas of public life Almost immediately after the decentralization of local governments in 1991 some local governments showed more entrepreneurial spirit than others At least part of these differences can be accounted by better socioeconomic situation of a region but culture seems to be playing even a larger role in this entrepreneurial race Recording for the Blind & Dyslexic, ... Catalog of Books, 1996 Gender, Peace and Conflict Inger Skjelsboek, Dan Smith, 2001-03-22 Gender is increasingly recognized as central to the study and analysis of the traditionally male domains of war and international relations The book explores the key role of gender in peace research conflict resolution and international politics Rather than simply add gender and stir the aim is to transcend different disciplinary boundaries and conceptual approaches to provide a more integrated basis for research and study To this end Gender Peace Conflict uniquely combines theoretical chapters alongside empirical case studies to demonstrate the importance of a gender perspective to both theory and practice in conflict resolution and peace research
