Their Substrates, and Language Typology Claire Lefebvre, 2011-01-01 Since creole languages draw their properties from both their substrate and superstrate sources the typological classification of creoles has long been a major issue for creolists typologists and linguists in general Several contradictory proposals have been put forward in the literature For example creole languages typologically pair with their superstrate languages Chaudenson 2003 with their substrate languages Lefebvre 1998 or even creole languages are alike Bickerton 1984 such that they constitute a definable typological class McWhorter 1998 This book contains 25 chapters bearing on detailed comparisons of some 30 creoles and their substrate languages As the substrate languages of these creoles are typologically different the detailed investigation of substrate features in the creoles leads to a particular answer to the question of how creoles should be classified typologically The bulk of the data show that creoles reproduce the typological features of their substrate languages This argues that creoles cannot be claimed to constitute a definable typological class Study Guide for Macquarie Aboriginal Words David Nathan,

Paper and Talk ,1995 An excellent introduction to the complicated issues of language reconstruction this concise guide explores languages that are no longer spoken or those that are spoken by only a few people Each contributor works through some of the complex issues vital to language workers in an accessible easy to read style and exercises throughout the book provide immediate ways to put the ideas into practice and experience the rewards and frustrations of this kind of language work

Warraparna Kurna! Rob Amery,2016-02-22 This book tells the story of the renaissance of the Kurna language the language of Adelaide and the Adelaide Plains in South Australia principally over the earliest period up until 2000 but with a summary and brief discussion of developments from 2000 until 2016 It chronicles and analyses the efforts of the Nunga community and interested others to reclaim and relearn a linguistic heritage on the basis of mid nineteenth century materials This study is breaking new ground In the Kurna case very little knowledge of the language remained within the Aboriginal community Yet the Kurna language has become an important marker of identity and a means by which Kurna people can further the struggle for recognition reconciliation and liberation This work challenges widely held beliefs as to what is possible in language revival and questions notions about the very nature of language and its development Translating and Interpreting in Australia and New Zealand Judy

Reciprocal Constructions Vladimir P. Nedjalkov, 2007-11-06 This monograph constitutes the first comprehensive investigation of reciprocal constructions and related phenomena in the world's languages Reciprocal constructions of the type The two boys hit each other The poets admire each other's poems have often been the subject of language particular studies but it is only in this work that a truly global comparative picture emerges Nine stage setting chapters dealing with general and theoretical matters are followed by 40 chapters containing in depth descriptions of reciprocals in individual languages by renowned specialists The introductory papers provide a conceptual and terminological framework that allows the authors of the individual chapters to characterize their languages in comparable terms making it easy for the reader to see points of commonality between languages and constructions that have never been compared before This set of volumes is an indispensable starting point and will be a lasting reference work for any future studies of reciprocals Aboriginal Placenames Luise Hercus, Harold Koch, 2009-10-01 Aboriginal approaches to the naming of places across Australia differ radically from the official introduced Anglo Australian system However many of these earlier names have been incorporated into contemporary nomenclature with considerable reinterpretations of their function and form Recently state jurisdictions have encouraged the adoption of a greater number of Indigenous names sometimes alongside the accepted Anglo Australian terms around Sydney Harbour for example In some cases the use of an introduced name such as Gove has been contested by local Indigenous people The 19 studies brought together in this book present an overview of current issues involving Indigenous placenames across the whole of Australia drawing on the disciplines of geography linguistics history and anthropology They include meticulous studies of historical records and perspectives stemming from contemporary Indigenous communities The book includes a wealth of documentary information on some 400 specific placenames including those of Sydney Harbour the Blue Mountains Canberra western Victoria the Lake Eyre district the Victoria River District and southwestern Cape York Peninsula First World, First Nations Gunter Minnerup, Pia Solberg, 2010-10-21 Collects essays on the Indigenous peoples of Australia and Northern Europe exploring the similarities and differences between the Indigenous experiences in the Nordic countries and Australia
