The New Natural History of Madagascar Aristide Andrianarimisa,2022 Reassembling the Strange Thomas

Anderson,2018-10-15 This book examines how Westerners understood and processed Madagascar and its environment during the nineteenth century Madagascar s unique ecosystem crafted its reputation as a strange place full of unusual species Westerners however often minimized Madagascar s peculiar features to stress the commonality of its fauna and flora with the world The attempt to understand the island through science led to a domestication of its environment that created the image of a tame and known world capable of being controlled and used by Western powers At the heart of the exploration of Madagascar and its transformation in Western eyes from a strange world to a cash crop colony were missionaries and naturalists who relied upon global experiences to master the island by normalizing the peculiar qualities of Madagascar s environment This book reveals how the environment played a dominant role in understanding the island and its people and how current environmental debates have evolved from earlier policies and discussions about the environment

Zachos, Jan Christian Habel, 2011-09-15 Biodiversity and its conservation are among the main global topics in science and politics and perhaps the major challenge for the present and coming generations This book written by international experts from different disciplines comprises general chapters on diversity and its measurement human impacts on biodiversity hotspots on a global scale human diversity itself and various geographic regions exhibiting high levels of diversity The areas covered range from genetics and taxonomy to evolutionary biology biogeography and the social sciences In addition to the classic hotspots in the tropics the book also highlights various other ecosystems harbouring unique species communities including coral reefs and the Southern Ocean The approach taken considers but is not limited to the original hotspot definition sensu stricto and presents a chapter introducing the 35th hotspot the forests of East Australia While due to a bias in data availability the majority of contributions on particular taxa deal with vertebrates and plants some also deal with the less studied invertebrates This book will be essential reading for anyone involved with biodiversity particularly researchers and practitioners in the fields of conservation biology ecology and evolution The Cuckoos Robert B.
