Minority Citizens In Disasters:

Minority Citizens in Disasters Ronald W. Perry, Alvin H. Mushkatel, 2008-03-01 The first study of its kind to address the issue of ethnic diversity Minority Citizens in Disasters focuses on the responses of two minorities blacks and Mexican Americans relative to whites in three disaster events a propane car derailment a nitric acid spill and a flood Ronald Perry and Alvin Mushkatel find that response to initial warnings is influenced by the source of the information mass media public authorities or family and friends and by the immediacy of the danger a group's familiarity with the type of threat and the cause of the disaster Though social contacts were most often the source of warning public authorities were the most trusted and reliable The mass media usually considered an unreliable source proved an effective means for reaching a majority of Mexican Americans who often tuned in to Spanish language stations Blacks however tended to dismiss the media as a vehicle controlled by whites and covering primarily white concerns while whites often dismissed news stories as mere media productions Perry and Mushkatel's record of the responses of blacks Mexican Americans and whites not only reveals the differing social configurations of minority and majority groups but more important suggests concrete ways to modify and improve emergency management systems American Minority Citizens in Disaster Ronald W. Norris, 2009-07-20 Since the attacks of September 11 2001 disaster preparedness and response has developed into a discrete subspecialty in medicine and the paramount health care initiative of the US Government The mental health component of disaster response is a serious subject of study as trauma is associated with a substantial and long lasting psychologic burden both on an individual and community level The psychopathologies associated with disaster are also quite broad varying from several different types of post traumatic stress and anxiety disorders to acute variations of grief associated depression This book is the definitive reference on mental health and disasters focused on the assessment and treatment of the full spectrum of psychopathologies associated with many different types of individual disasters The logistics for utilizing pre existing community based mental health services as well as the development of new programs are covered in depth Case studies and perspectives for improving care incorporating lessons from Hurricane Katrina and 9 11 are included in detail Human System Responses to Disaster Thomas E. Drabek, 2012-12-06 This series is dedicated to serving the growing community of scholars and practitioners concerned with the principles and applications of environmental management Each volume is a thorough treatment of a specific topic of importance for proper management practices A fundamental objective of these books is to help the reader discern and implement man's stewardship of our environment and the world's renewable resources For we must strive to understand the relationship between man and nature act to bring harmony to it and nurture an environment that is both stable and productive These objectives have often eluded us because the pursuit of other individual and societal goals has diverted us from a course of living in balance with the environment At times therefore the environmental manager may have to exert restrictive control which is usually best applied to man not nature Attempts to alter or harness nature have often failed or backfired as exemplified by the results of imprudent use of herbicides fertilizers water and other agents Each book in this series will shed light on the fundamental and applied aspects of environmental management It is hoped that each will help solve a practical and serious environmental problem Robert S DeSanto East Lyme Connecticut Acknowledgments
