of Ignorance Keith DeRose,2018-01-10 Contextualism the view that the epistemic standards a subject must meet in order for a claim attributing knowledge to her to be true do vary with context has been hotly debated in epistemology and philosophy of language during the last few decades This volume presents develops and defends contextualist solutions to two of the stickiest problems in epistemology the puzzles of skeptical hypotheses and of lotteries It is argued that at least by ordinary standards for knowledge we do know that skeptical hypotheses are false and that we've lost the lottery Why it seems that we don't know that they're false tells us a lot both about what knowledge is and how knowledge attributions work The Appearance of Ignorance is the companion volume to Keith DeRose's 2009 title The Case for Contextualism Knowledge Skepticism and Context Volume 1

The Vitruvian Time. Life is a Story - story.one Alhasan Zaher, 2024-08-30 The Vitruvian Time follows the obscure story that led to the creation of the universe It delves into the Realm of the Divine where the incarnation of abstract concepts ambiguously comes alive Based on a true imagination Time will take you in this speculative historical sci fi noir on a journey of discovering meaning answering each question by creating another quest Escorting you back to the origin of your design the brilliantly ciphered reflections of each chapter will leave you doubting your own existence in Time and Space only to take you by the heart into finding it again The ambivalent poetic dystopian utopian hybrid of this epic symbolic dreamy nightmarish creation will leave you with one final answer Life is trivial when it ends without knowing why it began Are you ready for the Bigger Bang scenario Time promises you a new beginning only if you reach the end

Fallibilism Jessica Anne Brown, 2018 What strength of evidence is required for knowledge Ordinarily we often claim to know something on the basis of evidence which doesn't guarantee its truth For instance one might claim to know that one sees a crow on the basis of visual experience even though having that experience does not guarantee that there is a crow it might be a rook or one might be dreaming As a result those wanting to avoid philosophical scepticism have standardly embraced fallibilism one can know a proposition on the basis of evidence that supports it even if the evidence doesn't guarantee its truth Despite this there's been a persistent temptation to endorse infallibilism according to which knowledge requires evidence that guarantees truth For doesn't it sound contradictory to simultaneously claim to know and admit the possibility of error Infallibilism is undergoing a contemporary renaissance Furthermore recent infallibilists make the surprising claim that they can avoid scepticism Jessica Brown presents a fresh examination of the debate between these two positions She argues that infallibilists can avoid scepticism only at the cost of problematic commitments concerning evidence and evidential support Further she argues that alleged objections to fallibilism are not compelling She concludes that we should be fallibilists In doing so she discusses the nature of evidence evidential support justification blamelessness closure for knowledge defeat epistemic akrasia practical reasoning concessive knowledge attributions and the threshold problem
