The Clinical Psychology of Aging Martha Storandt, Ilene C. Siegler, Merrill F. Elias, 2012-12-06 It has been estimated that there are at least 2 500 000 adults 10% of the population above age 65 who are currently in need of some sort of mental health services Kramer Taube and Redick 1973 Other estimates are even higher e g Pfeiffer 1977 It is expected that this number will increase as the number of older adults increases over the next 40 years Probably less than 400 clinical psychologists are now providing services to this age group The number of elderly patients actually seen by these psychologists is very very small One national survey found that of 353 psychologists who reported that they had older clients only 495 individuals were seen for psychological testing and 1423 for psychotherapy in the one month just prior to the response Dye in press Assuming that the same individuals were not seen for both testing and therapy within the one month period a questionable assumption approximately 08% of the at least two and one half million older adults in need of psychological services are now being supplied with these services in some form or another Thus the need for increased involvement of clinical psychology with the aged is undeniable However few resources currently exist which will serve to increase the number of clinical psychologists trained to meet this need Probably less than 100 clinical psychologists living today have received any kind of formal graduate training in the clinical psychology of the aging Storandt 1977
