Rhetoric And Reality Presidential Commissions And The Making Of Public Policy:

Rhetoric And Reality Terrence R Tutchings,2019-07-11 Since 1945 the role of the president in shaping domestic and foreign policy has changed dramatically Though the prodigious growth of the federal bureaucracy under the Executive Branch reflects much of this change bureaucratic response to the major issues of the past three decades has been ineffective or nonexistent and a notable parallel development has been the increasing use of public commissions in the policymaking process Dr Tutchings studies more than 100 public commissions using a model of the policymaking process that includes demands decision and information costs and policy results and outcomes Reviewing the results of the commissions as reflected in presidential support of recommendations via proposed legislation and in congressional response he notes that their membership has typically been dominated by government corporate elites as this membership has become more pluralistic there has been a sharp decline in the contributions of the commissions to the policymaking process Perhaps the most significant contribution of the book is its detailed development of the concept of rhetorical policy as a first step in the policymaking process Ibss Poli Sci 29 1980 "International Committee For Social Sciences Documentation",2013-10-15
