Primary Central Nervous System Lymphoma Mihnea Zdrengea, 2017 Although non Hodgkin s lymphoma NHL is a frequent cancer worldwide primary central nervous system CNS lymphoma PCNSL is a rare presentation with an incidence of less than 0.5 per 100 000 persons years in the western world In the vast majority of cases it has the histology of a diffuse large B cell lymphoma DLBCL and is a hardly curable disease with high relapse risk Therapeutic options are limited by blood brain barrier penetration of drugs and because of its low incidence high grade evidence from large studies is lacking current management being based on reports on rather small cohorts The current standard first line treatment for PCNSL consists of high dose methotrexate HD MTX in combination with a variety of drugs and consolidation whole brain radiotherapy the latter being progressively replaced by chemotherapy For patients relapsing after first line treatment intensive chemotherapy with autologous stem cell support is a feasible and relatively safe salvage therapy In the present chapter we briefly discuss primary central nervous system lymphoma management and review current therapeutic options and evidence based recommendations We discuss the role of whole brain radiotherapy WBRT and new prospects to avoid this side effect ridden approach Also we will look at new therapeutic approaches currently under investigation including immunotherapy

Malignant Lymphomas of the Nervous System K. Jellinger, F. Seitelberger, 2013-06-29 More than 150 years have passed since involvement of the nervous system in leukemia was first reported by BURNS while the possibility of the primary brain tumor derived from the lymphoreticular tissue was recognized much later BAILEY in 1929 described such neoplasms under the term perithelial sarcoma Later these tumors of the nervous system have been variously designated as Perivascular of perithelial sarcomas reticulum cell sarcomas or microgliomas as controversy has evolved and still exists on the definition of this group of neoplasms and on the nature of their cells of origin Much of the unfortunate confusion concerning the neoplastic lesions attributed to microglia and other derivations of the RE system arose because their close relationship to extra neural cells has been ignored On the other hand communication in the field of malignant lymphomas has become increasingly difficult because of the terminologic maze and conceptual diversities of traditional morphological classifications that have limited valid comparisons Although at present we are still far from a precise recognition of the basic features of lymphoproliferative processes and from a fairly general agreement on the terminology of non Hodgkin lymphomas there is encouraging evidence recently of some enlightenment on the nature of tumor cells that provides the basis for a reasonable and generally acceptable lymphoma classification
