Maguire, 2012-02-01 Although most large police organizations perform the same tasks there is tremendous variation in how individual organizations are structured To account for this variation author Edward R Maguire develops a new theory that attributes the formal structures of large municipal police agencies to the contexts in which they are embedded This theory finds that the relevant features of an organization's context are its size age technology and environment Using a database representing nearly four hundred of the nation's largest municipal police agencies Maguire develops empirical measures of police organizations and their contexts and then uses these measures in a series of structural equation models designed to test the theory Ultimately police organizations are shown to be like other types of organizations in many ways but are also shown to be unique in a number of respects

A Pragmatic Approach to Agency in Group Activity Herman Witzel, 2019-11-18 A Pragmatic Approach to Agency in Group Activity builds towards an action theory that explains how new forms agency develop in group activity The approach starts from practical insights about group activity and develops a new understanding of agency from there This study shows how practical interactions and structures in group activity disrupt individual agency It is concluded that important features of agency can be realized on a group level Different types of group activities are analyzed in order to better understand these mechanisms and consequently revisit our understanding of agency It is argued that intentionality the key concept in individual action theory merely serves as a pseudo explanatory connection between specific features of agency and their realization in humans This is contrasted with empirical research showing that how humans act is far from the idealized concept of intentionality Consequently intentionality as a key explanatory concept is rejected and replaced by a diverse set of features of agency for a similarly diverse set of kinds of agency In this view groups display new forms agency beyond individual agency without making the groups agents themselves Such is the nature of group agency
