Port Of Medieval Dublin Archaeological Excavation At The Civic Offices Winetavern Street Dublin:

The Port of Medieval Dublin Andrew Halpin, 2000 During the second phase of construction of the new Civic Offices Dublin in the early 1990s an archaeological excavation of the proposed car park area was undertaken by Dr Andrew Halpin on behalf of Dublin Corporation The excavation revealed evidence for remains of wooden revetments dating to the latter part of the 12th century and also the remains of a substantial masonry structure Historical research indicates that the stone building may be the remains of the 13th century Tholsel or Guildhall indicating continuity of function on this site Dublin Corporation was delighted to be able to fund this project from its inception to its completion in published form Early Medieval

Monetary History Martin Allen, 2016-12-05 Mark Blackburn was one of the leading scholars of the numismatics and monetary history of the British Isles and Scandinavia during the early medieval period He published more than 200 books and articles on the subject and was instrumental in building bridges between numismatics and associated disciplines in fostering international communication and cooperation and in establishing initiatives to record new coin finds This memorial volume of essays commemorates Mark Blackburn's considerable achievement and impact on the field builds on his research and evaluates a vibrant period in the study of early medieval monetary history Containing a broad range of high quality research from both established figures and younger scholars the essays in this volume maintain a tight focus on Europe in the early Middle Ages 6th 12th centuries reflecting Mark's primary research interests In geographical terms the scope of the volume stretches from Spain to the Baltic with a concentration of papers on the British Isles As well as a fitting tribute to remarkable scholar the essays in this collection constitute a major body of research which will be of long term value to anyone with an interest in the history of early medieval Europe Medieval Dublin Excavations, 1962-81, 1988

Routledge Revivals: Medieval Ireland (2005) Sean Duffy, 2017-07-05 Through violent incursions by the Vikings and the spread of Christianity medieval Ireland maintained a distinctive Gaelic identity From the sacred site of Tara to the manuscript illuminations in the Book of Kells Anglo Irish relations to the Connachta dynasty Ireland during the middle ages was a rich and vivid culture First published in 2005 Medieval Ireland An Encyclopedia brings together in one authoritative resource the multiple facets of life in Ireland before and after the Anglo Norman invasion of 1169 from the sixth to sixteenth century Multidisciplinary in coverage this A Z reference work provides information on historical events economics politics the arts religion intellectual history and many other aspects of the period Written by the world's leading scholars on the subject this highly accessible reference work will be of key interest to students researchers and general readers alike

Cities and Economy in Europe Katalin Szende, Erika Szívós, Boglárka Weisz, 2024-02-29 Exploring new perspectives concerning regions traditionally considered on the margins of Europe this book fills a gap in current historiography through its analysis of cities space and economy from the High Middle Ages to the present Markets trade and economy in general have formed the backbone of urban life ever since the emergence of cities and towns but classical theorists have largely focused on developments in Western Europe Urban research in the last few decades has advanced in many ways to supersede and correct this still influential image and to include other parts of Europe into the analytical framework Building on these emerging methodologies this volume pays close attention to the fringes of Europe in the East North West and South The essays discuss the development of various spaces as nodal points for the exchange and production of commodities that took place in cities and towns The scope of this work allows for a point of comparison to frequently studied examples in Europe encouraging readers to identify larger patterns beyond individual examples Cities and Economy in Europe Markets and Trade on the Margins from the Middle Ages to the Present is the perfect resource for students and researchers of economic and urban history

Medieval Dublin: Proceedings of the Friends of Medieval Dublin Symposium 2002, 2000 Children, Identity and the Past Liv Helga Dommasnes, Melanie Wrigglesworth, 2021-02-03 In this volume fourteen authors representing different academic fields and traditions present their work on children in past societies how to recognise children in the archaeological record the conditions of their lives and deaths and how they may have been perceived by their contemporaries The case studies from a number of European sites cover a time span from the Palaeolithic to the Middle Ages A central theme in many of the contributions is socialisation and education as part of identity forming processes What was it like to be a child in Palaeolithic times How did the Early Medieval Church approach the teaching of children Socialisation is a theme echoed also in the two papers dealing with teaching children of today about the past as the authors discuss how the past can be used in present identity forming processes During the last c 20 years the archaeology of children has been enriching our understandings of the past The papers in this volume make us realise that the study of children will have a profound impact on the study of past societies in general challenging us to reconsider established notions of prehistoric community life The past will never be the same after its children have entered the scene

The Reign of Alexander II, 1214-49 Richard Oram, 2005-04-01 This volume explores aspects of the political social cultural economic and religious development of Scotland in the reign of King Alexander II 1214 49 It constitutes the first full length multi author study of the king and his reign The nine contributors to the volume explore issues as diverse as the historiography of the reign Anglo Scottish relations Church State relations economy and international trade law aristocratic symbolism urban development and the territorial expansion of the kingdom This book the first major study of a reign which saw the Scottish monarchy achieve its mastery of northern mainland Britain is of great importance to historians of medieval Scotland and the wider British Isles The book is illustrated with 24 colour and b w photographs and 5 maps and plans Medieval Dublin: Proceedings of the friends of medieval Dublin symposium 2005, 2000 Medieval Dublin Friends of Medieval Dublin.

Symposium, 2008 Medieval Dublin IV Friends of Medieval Dublin. Symposium, Seán Duffy, 2003 These essays the proceedings of the fourth public symposium held by the Friends of Medieval Dublin in 2002 range from Eileen Reilly's account of what insect remains can tell us about life in and around the houses of Viking Dublin to Lynda Conlon's study of the legal rights and economic power of women in Anglo Norman Dublin to Danielle O Donovan's revelation that parts of the medieval archbishop's palace stand encased within the core of what is now Kevin Street Garda Station Medieval Dublin 7 Friends of Medieval Dublin. Symposium, Seán Duffy, 2006 This 7th volume of proceedings of the annual Friends of Medieval Dublin symposium contains in the archaeological arena John O'Neill's assessment of the significance for Viking Age rural settlement in the Dublin region of his excavations at Cherrywood and among other landmark studies a report by Abi Cryerhall on her excavations of the medieval Hangman's Lane subsequently the site of Hammond Lane iron foundry Roger Stalley studies the country retreat of Dublin's archbishops at Swords Castle in the later Middle Ages while Linzi Simpson's innovative use of John Rocque's map enables her to retrace precise property boundaries in the medieval city The very timbers that survive in the roofs of Dublin's two Anglo Norman cathedrals are subjected to detailed analysis Maire Geaney surveying those in the nave and south transept of Christ Church while Charles Lyons presents remarkable new evidence that the roof timbers of St Patrick's cathedral survive virtually intact from its medieval heyday Historical essays range from Viking Age Dublin and David Dumville's exploration of its wider international relations to Tudor Dublin and Brendan Scott's study of the opposition of its monastic houses to Henry VIII's plans for their dissolution An Archaeology of Southwest Ireland, 1570-1670 Colin Breen, 2007 The 17th century was a period of significant political and religious upheavals and was also a formative period in terms of landscape and settlement development throughout Ireland This book examines Munster from an historical archaeology perspective In particular the study sets the archaeological context of these developments against the historical background of plantation Cromwellian intervention and economic expansion Important developments in rural settlement occurred with a network of agricultural and trade settlement clusters being established or re developed The landscape was also physically changed through new patterns of ownership enclosure and intensification of rural practice Much of this was related to a large expansion in agricultural and fishing activity resulting in significant investment in port and marine communication facilities Industry was an important component of these developments and the Munster landscape retains many traces of these industries including iron and charcoal works Finally the role of the churches is examined in the context of these changing times Medieval Dublin VI Friends of Medieval Dublin. Symposium, Seán Duffy, 2005 This proceedings volume includes Linzi Simpson's report on recently uncovered evidence of the earliest Viking settlements at Dublin Andy Halpin's analysis of the later developmental phases of the Hiberno Norse town and Ailbhe MacShamhráin's report on the Dublin material in the new Monasticon Hibernicum Project The Archaeological Journal, 2001

Uncovering Medieval Trim Michael Potterton, Matthew Seaver, 2009 Trim is one of Ireland's best known medieval towns and yet for a very long time many aspects of its early history and development were poorly understood A series of important archaeological excavations have taken place in recent years and this publication brings together the results of these investigations for the first time The book opens with a foreword by John Bradley one of Ireland's foremost experts on medieval towns followed by an introductory overview by Michael Potterton author of Medieval Trim history and archaeology

 A fascinating glimpse into prehistory is provided by Fiona Beglane s study of an enigmatic Iron Age pit full of pigs feet Of special significance is new evidence that proves beyond reasonable doubt that Trim s first church was located where the Church of Ireland cathedral now stands New light is shed upon death and burial in and around the town as well as the layout and development of the religious houses The location and form of the town s medieval defences as well as its streets houses and suburbs are also illuminated New evidence is discussed for small scale craft and industry as well as diet health and daily life An overview is provided of the range and origins of the various types of medieval pottery found in the town The book ends with a summary of the recently commissioned management and conservation plans for Trim s town walls Publisher s description Ireland, England, and the Continent in the Middle Ages and Beyond Howard B. Clarke, J. R. S. Phillips, 2006
