

Social Justice in Panchayati Raj in India

Dr. Irsad Ali Khan

Lecturer, Political Science, Government Bangal College, Dabwani, Rajasthan, India

ABSTRACT

The Constitution of India is the best known for its magnificent social initiative, begins with the glorious preamble which guarantees the key-concepts as liberty, equality, justice and fraternity to the entire people of the country. These expressions postulate an unwritten pledge that everyone will do justice to one another especially for the common man – for the man on the street and in the farms, for the driver of the bullock-cart and for other suppressed and neglected sections. This was the reason why the Founding Fathers had chosen to prefer justice to Liberty, Equality and Fraternity for placement in order; again social justice was assigned a preferential place over economic and political. Otherwise the expression in the preamble – “We the people of India give unto our selves this Constitution” loses its meaning and import, as much as the promise in Article 38 – (The State) shall strive to promote the welfare of the people by securing and protecting as effectively as it may a social order in which justice – social, economic and political shall inform all institutions of national life. Thus, Social Justice in a comprehensive sense must permeate in depth and permeate in its widest spectrum to all aspect of social life, including the stigmatized untouchability and the so-called members of the Backward classes. The concept of Social Justice must take within its sweep the objective of removing all inequalities and affording equal opportunities to all citizens in social and economic affairs. Our country is not a utilitarian State, but a Democratic Republic with committed to welfareism. The problems enumerated above which concern the overwhelmingly large number of the citizens, could never be successfully tackled unless the State uses its most effective ameliorating devices against socio-economic and socio-legal instrumentalities that necessarily calls for a total reform for balancing economic structure and thereby relieve the body-politic of the tension. In the process, the new era of Social Justice in the Democratic Republic of India could be surely ushered, when our condition favours introduction of democracy at the grass-root level i.e., the creation of Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) which embodied in Article 40 of the Constitution). The basic conviction that Village Panchayats could play an important role in the social transformation and implementation of development programmes. In this paper, an attempt has made here for the Village Panchayat contributed for achieving the empowerment of women.

INTRODUCTION

In the history of human development, woman has been as important as man. In fact the status, employment and work performed by women in society is the indicator of a nation's overall progress. Without the participation of women in national activities, the social, economic or political progress of a country will be stagnated. The fact is that most of the women's domestic role is combined with economic activities and utilization of their skill and labour to earn extra income for the family, which makes the family to lead a decent life. Women are regarded as the “better half” of the society and at par with the men.[1,2] Efforts are being made to realize that women are real “better half” in men's life. They

Behind the Veil Sunita Dhaka,Rajvir S. Dhaka,2005 The UN Millennium Development Goals MDGs reflect widespread international acknowledgement that empowerment of women and the achievement of gender equality are matters of human rights and social justice Today gender disparity and empowerment have come to occupy the centre stage of development debate Since independence a number of legislative enactments have helped alleviate the status of women in India but still a lot remains to be achieved The place and status of women in decision making apparatus needs to be evaluated and empowerment strategies formulated The enactment of 73rd Amendment Act was a major step towards women s empowerment The problem of participatory management of welfare schemes can be solved only when the marginalised section of the society come to play a major role in decision making The scheduled castes in general and the scheduled castes women in particular continue to lead a life of misery and deprivation Even though seats have been reserved in favour of SCs women but very little has changed at the ground level This book is an outcome of a study conducted in Haryana and focuses on the status and participation of scheduled castes women in decision making institutions at the local level i e Panchayati Raj Institutions A number of factors have been identified which help in understanding the problems in a proper perspective The case studies which form part of the book have made this book very valuable In short this bok helps in undestanding the various issues at stake due to which the scheduled castes women continue to remain out of decision making institutions at the local level This book is useful to policy planners administrators researchers and students of Decentralized Governance and Gender Justice Call of the Individual S. A Political Ecology of Forest Conservation in India Amrita Sen,2021-11-25 This book critically explores the political ecology of human marginalization wildlife conservation and the role of the state in politicizing conservation frameworks drawing on examples from forests in India The book specifically demonstrates the nuances within human environmental linkages by showing how environmental concerns are not only ecological in content but also political In India a large part of the forests and their surrounding areas were inhabited far before they were designated as protected areas and inviolate zones with the local population reliant on forests for their survival and livelihoods Thus socioecological conflicts between the forest dependents and official state bodies have been widespread This book uses a political ecology lens to explore the complex interplay between current norms of forest conservation and environmental subjectivities illustrating contemporary articulation of forest rights and the complex mediations between forest dependents and different state and non state bodies in designing and implementing regulatory standards for wildlife and forest protection It foregrounds the issues of identity migration and cultural politics while discussing the politics of conservation Through a political ecology approach the book not only is human centric but also makes significant use of the role of non humans in foregrounding the conservation discourse with a particular focus on tigers The book will be of great interest to students and academics studying forest conservation human wildlife interactions and political ecology

On the changing perspective of Chamars in modern times a study The Past as Presence Jayashree Vivekanandan, 2025-11-03 This book explores South Asia's postcolonial politics through the lens of circulatory networks of objects, people, and ideas as the region navigated pivotal historical junctures. The contributors reexamine epochal moments in South Asia's international relations including the Second World War, the 1947 Partition, and the 1971 Liberation War, drawing insights from social history, memory studies, and popular discourses. Through thematic case studies, the historically informed contributions illuminate the complex entanglements between elite and everyday politics. By investigating diverse sites—borderlands, diaspora communities, battlefields, memorials, visual archives, and personal chronicles—the volume demonstrates how practices of remembering, forgetting, and commemorating are intrinsic to the region's ongoing identity formation. The folding of time, colonial with postcolonial, is repeatedly brought home in these contributions. This nuanced engagement with the international realm reveals how macro politics and micro histories are inextricably linked in South Asia's postcolonial experience. This volume will appeal to students and scholars across multiple fields including International Relations, political science, history, South Asian studies, postcolonial studies, memory studies, and cultural studies. Researchers and policy analysts working on South Asia and interested in the intersection of identity, politics, historical memory, and state formation will find the book's theoretical and historical framing of South Asian politics particularly valuable. The chapters in this book were originally published in India Review.
