Commerce in Culture Cynthia J. Brokaw, 2020-03-23 Sibao today is a cluster of impoverished villages in the mountains of western Fujian Yet from the late seventeenth through the early twentieth century it was home to a flourishing publishing industry Through itinerant booksellers and branch bookshops managed by Sibao natives this industry supplied much of south China with cheap educational texts household guides medical handbooks and fortune telling manuals It is precisely the ordinariness of Sibao imprints that make them valuable for the study of commercial publishing the text production process and the geographical and social expansion of book culture in Chinese society In a study with important implications for cultural and economic history Cynthia Brokaw describes rural lower level publishing and bookselling operations at the end of the imperial period Commerce in Culture traces how the poverty and isolation of Sibao necessitated a bare bones approach to publishing and bookselling and how the Hakka identity of the Sibao publishers shaped the configuration of their distribution networks and even the nature of their publications Sibao s industry reveals two major trends in print culture the geographical extension of commercial woodblock publishing to hinterlands previously untouched by commercial book culture and the related social penetration of texts to lower status levels of the population Snakes' Legs Martin W. Huang, 2004-09-30 Snakes Legs examines seguels xushu a common but long neglected literary phenomenon in traditional China What prompted writers to produce sequels despite their poor reputation as a genre What motivated readers to read them How should we characterize the nature of the relationship between seguels and rewritings Contributors to this volume illuminate these and other questions and the collection as a whole offers a comprehensive consideration of this vigorous genre while suggesting fascinating new directions for research Xushu as a discursive practice reinforces the paradox that innovation is impossible without imitation It presents us with fertile ground for studying the intricate ties that bind the writer and reader of traditional Chinese fiction the writer of xushu is always self consciously assuming the dual role of author and reader and in the writing process must consider both the work in progress as well as its precursor s Snakes Legs contains detailed discussions of some representative xushu works from the late Ming and Qing periods many of which have received little scholarly attention It will shed light on the development of Chinese fiction and the various textual practices in traditional China as well as account for the genre's continuing vitality in modern times Contributors Robert E Hegel Siao chen Hu Martin W Huang Keith McMahon Qiancheng Li Ying Wang Ellen Widmer Laura H Wu Shuhui Yang The Novel. Volume 1 Franco Moretti, 2006 Publisher Description Heroines of the Qing Binbin Yang, 2016-04-01 Heroines of the Qing introduces an array of Chinese women from the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries who were powerful active subjects of their own lives and who wrote themselves as the heroines of their exemplary stories Traditionally exemplary women lienu heroic martyrs chaste widows and faithful maidens for example were written into official dynastic histories for their unrelenting adherence to female virtue by Confucian family standards However despite the rich writing traditions about these women their lives were often distorted by moral and cultural agendas Binbin Yang drawing on interdisciplinary sources shows how they were able to cross boundaries that were typically closed to women boundaries not only of gender but also of knowledge economic power political engagement and ritual and cultural authority Yang closely examines the rhetorical strategies these exemplary women exploited for self representation in various writing genres and highlights their skillful negotiation with and appropriation of the values of female exemplarity for self empowerment A Companion to Chinese Art Martin J.
