Flexibility and Lifelong Learning Katherine Nicoll, 2006-09-27 This book seeks to develop different approaches to policy analysis through a discursive and rhetorical engagement with the themes of flexibility and lifelong learning

Reconceptualising Lifelong Learning Sue Jackson, Penny Jane Burke, 2007-05-10 Arising from work by the Gender and Lifelong Learning Group of the Gender and Education Association this book presents reconceptualisations of lifelong learning

It argues that the current field of lifelong learning is based on certain hidden values and assumptions and examines the mechanisms by which exclusionary discourses and practices are reproduced and maintained. The book opens up ways of conceptualising learning that takes into account multiple and shifting formations of learners from different social contexts. The authors broaden what counts as learning and who counts as a learner offering different understandings of lifelong learning that are able to include currently marginalised values and principles. Organised in four sections the book looks at reclaiming it, draws on feminist and post structural conceptual frameworks to create a critical analysis of the current field of lifelong learning, retelling it, tells the tales of different multi positions in lifelong learning, revisioning it, moves from narrative to analysis and the authors present their revisioning of learning which provide the tools to reconceptualise the field of lifelong learning, reconstructing it, furthers the discussion to outline new approaches to and practices in lifelong learning.

Re-Shaping Learning: A Critical Reader Anne Boddington, Jos Boys, 2012-01-01 Learning Spaces is an emerging field fuelled by a growing interest in the relationships between learning and spaces in which it takes place whether conceptual, personal, social, physical and or virtual. It is concerned with making learning spaces that can better meet the needs of 21st century learners, academics and other related publics. In post compulsory education this has opened up many interesting and important issues. There remains a lack of any theoretical understanding as to how such spaces should be conceived or designed and hardly any critical discussion about effective frameworks for either the development of contemporary learning spaces or for assessing their impact on learning, teaching and research. At the same time there is much debate about what the purposes of post compulsory education should be as well as concerns about where and by whom it should be provided. We therefore need to urgently improve our understanding of the interactions between learning and space. It is essential that we not only share perspectives, theories and methodologies but also critically reflect on our own different assumptions and work together to build better models for post compulsory education in the future. To help in this process this book is designed as a critical reader that can enable researchers, academics, students and managers involved in Learning Spaces to share and engage with some key ideas, issues and texts. A central aim is to bring together some of the best research from across the many different disciplines concerned with learning spaces including education, architecture, anthropology, human computer interaction, estate planning and museum studies. Reshaping Learning is thus intended for anyone interested in and wanting to think more about learning spaces whether as users, clients or managers or who are want to better understand interactions between the social and the spatial.
