Readings In Medieval Texts:

Readings in Medieval Texts David Frame Johnson, Elaine M. Treharne, 2005 Readings in Medieval Texts offers a thorough and accessible introduction to the interpretation and criticism of a broad range of Old and Middle English canonical texts from the ninth to the fifteenth centuries. The volume brings together 24 newly commissioned chapters by a leading international team of medieval scholars. An introductory chapter highlights the overarching trends in the composition of English Literature in the Medieval periods and provides an overview of the textual continuities and innovations. Individual chapters give detailed information about context, authorship, date, and critical views on texts before providing fascinating and thought-provoking examinations of crucial excerpts and themes. This book will be invaluable for undergraduate and graduate students on all courses in Medieval Studies, particularly those focusing on understanding literature and its role in society.

Feminist Readings in Middle English Literature Dr Ruth Evans, Ruth Evans, Leslie Johnson, 2005-08-04. This volume, designed with the student reader in mind, is an indispensable blend of key essays in the field with specially commissioned new material by feminist scholars from the UK and the US. It includes a diversity of texts and feminist approaches, a substantial and very illuminating introduction by the editors, and an annotated list of Further Reading offering preliminary guidance to the reader approaching the topic of gender and medieval literature for the first time. Works and writers covered include Chaucer, Margery Kempe, Christine de Pisan, The Katherine group, of Saints Lives, Langland's Piers Plowman. Medieval cycle drama. Students of both medieval and feminist literature will find this an essential work for study and reference.

Archetypal Readings of Medieval Literature Charlotte Spivack, Christine Herold, 2003. Reading Old English Texts Katherine O'Brien O'Keeffe, 1997-08-28. Reading Old English Texts, first published in 1997, focuses on the critical methods being used and developed for reading and analysing writings in Old English. The collection is timely given the explosion of interest in the theory, method, and practice of critical reading. Each chapter engages with work on Old English texts from a particular methodological stance. The authors are all experts in the field but are also concerned to explain their method and its application to a broad undergraduate and graduate readership. The chapters include a brief historical background to the approach, a definition of the field or method under consideration, a discussion of some exemplary criticism with a balance of prose and verse passages, an illustration of the ways in which texts are read through this approach, and some suggestions for future work.

Materializing Englishness in Early Medieval Texts Jacqueline Fay, 2022. Provides a new way of understanding how people became English during the Anglo-Saxon period by tracing the links between Englishness and the body in the texts and culture of this time. Medievalism and the Academy II David Metzger, 2000. The second part of Medievalism and the Academy identifies the four specific questions that have come to focus recent scholarship in medievalism: What is difference? What is theory? Woman/God. The impact of cultural studies on contemporary medieval studies is investigated in this latest volume of Studies in Medievalism, which also offers an account of the developing interest of contemporary cultural theorists in the medieval period Rather than dismissing the connection between medieval studies and cultural criticism as an expression of academic self interest the essays identify specific questions which engage both such as race history women religion and literature Topics include the use of Augustine by postcolonial theorists the influence of studies in medieval mysticism on the development of women's studies programs and the influence of Foucault and New Historicism on the study of medieval history Contributors ELLIE RAGLAND TIMOTHY RICHARDSON MICHAEL BERNARD DONALD CLAY KINSNER LINDA SEXSON REBECCA DOUGLASS LOUISE SYLVESTER RICHARD GLEJZER CHARLES WILSON ANDREW J DELL OLIO

Flesh and Word Sarah Künzler, 2016-08-22 Bodies and their role in cultural discourse have been a constant focus in the humanities and social sciences in recent years but comparatively few studies exist about Old Norse Icelandic or early Irish literature This study aims to redress this imbalance and presents carefully contextualised close readings of medieval texts The chapters focus on the role of bodies in mediality discourse in various contexts that of identity in relation to ideas about self and other of inscribed and marked skin and of natural bodily matters such as defecation urination and menstruation By carefully discussing the sources in their cultural contexts it becomes apparent that medieval Scandinavian and early Irish texts present their very own ideas about bodies and their role in structuring the narrated worlds of the texts The study presents one of the first systematic examinations of bodies in these two literary traditions in terms of body criticism and emphasises the ingenuity and complexity of medieval texts

Critical Neurodiversity Studies Jenny Bergenmar, Louise Creechan, Anna Stenning, 2025-07-10 This landmark volume for neurodiversity studies introduces a new more inclusive field of scholarship for literary and cultural studies Bringing together scholars and writers from across Europe it explores the revolutionary potential of neurodivergent scholarly practice and demonstrates that there is no such thing as a normal response to cultural production Drawing on critical disability studies to highlight the ideology behind dominant notions of ability it moves beyond representations of neurodivergent characters and highlights the entanglement of sensory and cognitive difference with both cultural practices and social status Combining the recent turn towards psychiatric depathologisation with insights from feminist queer intersectional and critical race theory this volume aims to amplify the epistemic authority of those who have been subject to marginalisation because of the ways we are taught to read and value literary culture In essence this volume reveals what it means to read write and love literature and the arts as a neurodivergent person

The Ethics of Reading in Manuscript Culture John Dagenais, 1994-02-18 Reexamining the roles played by author reader scribe and text in medieval literary practice John Dagenais argues that the entire physical manuscript must be the basis of any discussion of how meaning was made Medievalists he maintains have relied too heavily on critical editions that seek to create a single definitive text reflecting an author's intentions In reality manuscripts bear not only authorial texts but also a variety of elements added by scribes and readers glosses marginal notes pointing hands illuminations and fragments of other seemingly unrelated works Using the surviving manuscripts of the fourteenth century Libro de buen amor a work that has been read both as didactic treatise on spiritual love and as a celebration of sensual pleasures Dagenais shows how consideration of the physical manuscripts and their cultural context can shed new light on interpretive issues that have puzzled modern readers Dagenais also addresses the theory and practice of reading in the Middle Ages showing that for medieval readers the text on the manuscript leaf including the text of the Libro was primarily rhetorical and ethical in nature It spoke to them directly individually always in the present moment Exploring the margins of the manuscripts of the Libro and of other Iberian works Dagenais reveals how medieval readers continually reshaped their texts both physically and ethically as they read and argues that the context of medieval manuscript culture forces us to reconsider such comfortable received notions as text and literature and the theories we have based upon them

Homer's Text and Language Gregory Nagy, 2004 As Homer remains an indispensable figure in the canons of world literature interpreting the Homeric text is a challenging and high stakes enterprise There are untold numbers of variations imitations alternate translations and adaptations of the Iliad and Odyssey making it difficult to establish what exactly the epics were Gregory Nagy's essays have one central aim to show how the text and language of Homer derive from an oral poetic system In Homeric studies there has been an ongoing debate centering on different ways to establish the text of Homer and the different ways to appreciate the poetry created in the language of Homer Gregory Nagy a lifelong Homer scholar takes a stand in the midst of this debate He presents an overview of millennia of scholarly engagement with Homer's poetry shows the different editorial principles that have been applied to the texts and evaluates their impact
