Schuetze, Germán Álvarez Mendiola, Diane Conrad, 2012-09-05 Universities have never been static Even so it is fair to say they have experienced a most radical transformation in the past twenty years During this period the role and responsibility of the state generally have been broadly limited while allowing market forces private ownership and control more influence But even where the state is still the main provider or funder it relies increasingly on market mechanisms for example contractual relations between state and institutions competition among providers for resources and external assessment of outputs which means the results or impact of what universities do in particular teaching and research The new terminology speaks of price and competition inputs and outputs resources cost and benefits demand and supply provider and customer consumers and investors quality control and accountability Education and post secondary education especially are increasingly seen as matters for markets Formal post secondary education becomes a service commercialized and traded across national borders This volume on changing relationship between state and market contains besides an introductory analytic overview of the issues accounts from different countries regions and thematic perspectives Chapter authors describe and analyze government reforms and other developments that have directly or indirectly affected this relationship Although the geographical focus is on North America especially Mexico South East Asia and Europe the phenomenon is not limited to these regions and countries but worldwide efficiency performance and managerialism drive the agenda What are the effects of internationalisation on higher education in the universities of today With chapters from internationally respected scholars from around the globe this book seeks to address the many issues of the new reality in higher education This is a welcome accessible volume for all those concerned with research policy making and curriculum development Professor Suzanne Majhanovich Western University Policy Analysis of Structural Reforms in Higher Education Harry de Boer,Jon File,Jeroen Huisman,Marco Seeber,Martina Vukasovic,Don F Westerheijden,2016-11-09 This book addresses the complex phenomenon in higher education of structural reforms in higher education systems Across the globe governments initiate comprehensive reforms of their higher education systems because they want their models to be the best and to excel at what they do This regularly requires governments to change the higher education landscape to achieve their set objectives Changes can include merger processes the introduction of a new sector of higher education or a new type of higher education institution or excellence initiative This book explores the current understanding of how successful such comprehensive reforms have been through an examination of eleven reform cases in European countries For each reform the different phases of the policy process policy objectives design implementation policy tools and evaluation are systematically described and analysed to provide an overview of the factors that contribute to the success or failure of the reforms Higher Education Reform and Development: The Case of Kazakhstan Matthew Hartley,Alan Ruby,2017-05-11 A collaborative series with the University of Cambridge Faculty of Education highlighting leading edge research across Teacher Education International Education Reform and Language Education The Kazakhstan government has sought to radically overhaul its education system moving from a highly centralised system to one that allows for more institutional autonomy and responsiveness at the local level This book investigates the key reforms involved including increasing the academic and fiscal autonomy of universities the creation of a world class university and the implementation of a large scale international scholarship programme The case of Kazakhstan underscores the significant challenges of enacting reforms which require new policies and structures and an entirely new set of assumptions about academic quality the work of universities and the role of education in society Pruning The Ivy Milton Leontiades,2007-04-01 Higher education in America is the best in the world but it is also desperately in need of reform Lacking effective competition and insulated from market forces universities have created a model fundamentally at odds with free market principles In a system few outsiders comprehend universities uniquely are run for the benefit of faculty Increasingly top universities have come to resemble closed academic societies Admission is by way of a Ph D degree Mastery of abstract research for its own sake is the route to promotion and advancement Teaching is of incidental importance for tenure the goal of every academic Achieving tenure assures long term employment without mandatory retirement plus freedom from inhibitions on speech or actions Faculty share governance with an administration although faculty lack managerial skills or responsibility for their recommendations Politically conformist faculty think one way and recruit newcomers who think alike Given time institutions that do not attract strong leaders or demand accountability from faculty are destined to underperform Cracks in the seams of the current system are emerging in out of control costs and greater competition Lacking normal measures of efficiency or productivity universities costs tend to spiral higher with future escalation a given The trends are clear but not yet ominous Without reform America s universities are coasting Can reforms take hold before a crisis is reached Only if strong voices demand it Reform from universities that are characterized by intellectual inbreeding and self regulation cannot be expected Assuring future generations of a quality education is the collective responsibility and duty of the citizenry Based on an inside out view of universities this book provides the ammunition for such a campaign It provides the information and stimulus for reform for legislators community leaders academics and average citizens

Zemsky, 2009-08-11 Making Reform Work is a practical narrative of ideas that begins by describing who is saying what about American higher education who's angry who's disappointed and why Most of the pleas for changing American colleges and universities that originate outside the academy are lamentations on a small number of too often repeated themes The critique from within the academy focuses on issues principally involving money and the power of the market to change colleges and universities Sandwiched between these perspectives is a public that still has faith in an enterprise that it really doesn't understand Robert Zemsky one of a select group of scholars who participated in Secretary of Education Margaret Spellings's 2005 Commission on the Future of Higher Education signed off on the commission's report with reluctance In Making Reform Work he presents the ideas he believes should have come from that group to forge a practical agenda for change Zemsky argues that improving higher education will require enlisting faculty leadership on the one hand and on the other a strategy for changing the higher education system writ large Directing his attention from what can't be done to what can be done Zemsky provides numerous suggestions These include a renewed effort to help students' performance in high schools and a stronger focus on the science of active learning not just teaching methods He concludes by suggesting a series of dislodging events for example making a three year baccalaureate the standard undergraduate degree congressional rethinking of student aid in the wake of the loan scandal and a change in the rules governing endowments that could break the gridlock that today holds higher education reform captive Making Reform Work offers three rules for successful college and university transformation don't vilify don't play games and come to the table with a well thought out strategy rather than a sharply worded lamentation Reforms, Organizational Change and Performance in Higher Education Rómulo
