Food Production in the People's Republic of China Anthony M. Tang,Bruce Stone,1980 Abstract A population of one billion people has the potential for enormous impact on the world food supply but demographic and food production data for the People s Republic of China have been difficult to obtain In an effort to fill this gap two papers are presented which attempt ot synthesize and analyze as much information as is available and make predictions of probable trends in agriculture and related fields in the year 2000 and for the 1985 grain program Records from 1952 77 are used to estimate cultivated land animals energy consumption farm machinery fertilizer and output of grains soybeans and cotton The effects of industrailization and resources are considered Trends are toward population control although total demand will continue to grow emphasis on agriculture seems to indicate that production will be capable of keeping up with demand may result in some dietary improvement but will not provide for emergency supplies Red China's Green Revolution Joshua Eisenman,2018-04-24 China s dismantling of the Mao era rural commune system and return to individual household farming under Deng Xiaoping has been seen as a successful turn away from a misguided social experiment and a rejection of the disastrous policies that produced widespread famine In this revisionist study Joshua Eisenman marshals previously inaccessible data to overturn this narrative showing that the commune modernized agriculture increased productivity and spurred an agricultural green revolution that laid the foundation for China s future rapid growth Red China s Green Revolution tells the story of the commune s origins evolution and downfall demonstrating its role in China s economic ascendance After 1970 the commune emerged as a hybrid institution including both collective and private elements with a high degree of local control over economic decision but almost no say over political ones It had an integrated agricultural research and extension system that promoted agricultural modernization and collectively owned local enterprises and small factories that spread rural industrialization The commune transmitted Mao's collectivist ideology and enforced collective isolation so it could overwork and underpay its households Eisenman argues that the commune was eliminated not because it was unproductive but because it was politically undesirable it was the post Mao leadership led by Deng Xiaoping not rural residents who chose to abandon the commune in order to consolidate their control over China Based on detailed and systematic national provincial and county level data as well as interviews with agricultural experts and former commune members Red China's Green Revolution is a comprehensive historical and social scientific analysis that fundamentally challenges our understanding of recent Chinese economic history Historical Dictionary of the People's Republic of China Lawrence R.
