Palestine in EU and Russian Foreign Policy Malath Alagha, 2016-10-04 The establishment of a Palestinian state has long been a strategic objective of EU and Russian foreign policy in the Middle East However over a decade after the creation of the road map the establishment of an independent Palestinian state has still not been achieved Palestine in EU and Russian Foreign Policy uses the school of constructivism to provide a new understanding of EU and Russian foreign policy It explores the failure of these global actors to speed up the process of establishing a Palestinian state despite this being a strategic objective and top priority of their involvement in the Middle East peace process The book then analyses the role of identity and self other perception in the making of EU and Russian foreign policy towards the Middle East peace process It is argued that Palestinian statehood provides a telling empirical example of how and to what extent the search for global actorness as a matter of international identity informs foreign policy making by global actors The book then proceeds to discuss why the EU and Russia are so eager to be involved in initiating a peace settlement Offering a new understanding of foreign policy making by global players in Middle Eastern politics this book will appeal to students scholars and policymakers working in International Relations and European Russian and Middle Eastern studies
