Unflinching Zeal Robin Higham, 2012-09-15 This consequential work by a pioneer aviation historian fills a significant lacuna in the story of the defeat of France in May-June 1940 and more fully explains the Battle of Britain of July-October of that year and the influence it had on the Luftwaffe in the 1941 invasion of the USSR Robin Higham approaches the subject by sketching the story and status of the three air forces the Armée de l'Air the Luftwaffe and the Royal Air Force their organization and preparation for their battles He then dissects the campaigns their losses and replacement policies and abilities He paints the struggles of France and Britain from both the background provided by his recent Two Roads to War From Versailles to Dunkirk NIP 2012 and from the details of losses tabulated by After the Battle's The Battle of Britain 1982 2nd ed and Peter Cornwell's The Battle of France Then and Now 2007 as well as in Paul Martin's Invisible Vainqueurs 1990 and from the Luftwaffe summaries in the British National Archives Cabinet papers One important finding is that the consumption and wastage was not nearly as high as claimed The three air forces actually shot down only 19 percent of the number claimed In the RAF case in the summer of 1940 44 percent of those shot down were readily repairable thanks to the salvage and repair organizations This contrasted with the much lower 8 percent for the Germans and zero for the French Brave as the aircrews may have been the inescapable conclusion is that awareness of consumption wastage and sustainability were intimately connected to survival

Training Aircraft Chris Goss,2019-09-30 From a retired RAF Wing Commander an introductory guide to the aerial warfare training methods implemented by Germany for airmen during World War II The often unnoticed element in aerial warfare is the training yet its value is beyond calculation The Luftwaffe used a variety of aircraft in this fundamental role with trainee pilots progressing from simpler older machines to the more sophisticated as well as heavier aircraft Gradually airmen were introduced to newer faster models that enabled them to experience to some degree the type of aircraft they would fly in combat Recruits would initially spend six months at a Fliegerersatzabteilung or training depot where the main emphasis was on drill and physical training with introductory lectures on the principles of wireless operation and map reading This would be followed by two months studying general aeronautical subjects before being sent to elementary flying school The various kinds of aircraft used for training depended upon the role each individual trainee would eventually undertake from single seat fighters to multiple crew bombers or transports In this the Luftwaffe was also able to make use of captured enemy aircraft It also established training units through the Occupied territories to enable its trainees to familiarize themselves with different conditions and terrain In the less pressurized environment of the training schools away from the front line more care could be taken over photography resulting in the author of this extensive study of the wide range of aircraft used for training by the Luftwaffe being able to assemble such a fine collection of excellent images The Luftwaffe 1933-1945
