Great Portraits, Women Philip Leslie Hale, 1909 Pictures of Innocence Holburne Museum of Art, 2005 Great Portraits Philip Leslie Hale, 2017-05-20 Excerpt from Great Portraits Children Still practically every great painter has tried his hand at painting children at least once or twice and most of them have produced excellent work only a man may turn out a very respectable portrait of a child and yet not be a true painter of children To do that well there is needed a certain insight into child character Not that a child has a very subtle or complicated character but it is a character all the same and one that can be divined only by sympathy Constable once said that to a man who approached Nature in an arrogant spirit her choicest beauties remained forever veiled One might say this particularly about children We feel instinctively that only those who love children can paint them About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Great Portraits: Children Philip Leslie Hale, 1909
