Souza, Ann Trousdale, 2013-12-04 In recent decades and around the world much attention has been given to the role of spirituality in the education of children and young people While educationalists share many common goals and values in nurturing the spiritual lives of children and young people national and regional cultures religions and politics have impacted on the approaches scholars and practitioners have adopted in their investigations and practices The different contexts across nations and regions mean that educators face quite distinct conditions in which to frame their approaches to spiritual education and research and the nature and impact of these differences is not yet understood This book brings together thinkers from around the globe and sets them the task of explaining how their research on children's spirituality and education has been shaped by the historical cultural religious and political contexts of the geographic region in which they work The book presents contributions in three sections Europe and Israel Australasia and The Americas and concludes with a chapter highlighting what is common and what is contextually unique about global approaches to spirituality and education

Character Education Wouter Sanderse, 2012 Many teachers want to contribute to children's moral development but this desire has not always resulted in a profound grasp of what moral education really means why it would be desirable and how it can best be achieved This book confronts these questions by examining what Aristotelian virtue ethics can illuminate about moral education At the same time it evaluates whether Aristotelian theory can still be useful for contemporary educational practice The argument culminates in a morally justified and psychologically realistic account of how virtue can best be taught in schools The approach called character education sees moral education not as enforcing rules or transferring values in separate subjects Instead it encourages teachers to be a morally exemplary teacher which is revealed through all kinds of small decisions and emotional reactions This philosophical essay takes a constructive but critical stance towards empirical research about the effectiveness of teaching methods and the realism of character traits Bringing in a New Era in
