Media And The Presidentialization Of Parliamentary Elections:

Media and the Presidentialization of Parliamentary Elections Anthony Mughan, 2000-10-10 In theory parliamentary elections are a contest between political parties whose leaders do not have a separate identity from their party in the public eye This case study of Britain shows that this theory no longer holds the dynamics of parliamentary elections have become more presidential in the sense that the leaders of the major parties now figure more prominently on both media coverage of the campaign and in the party that voters choose at the polls The implications for our understanding of parliamentary democracy are discussed

The Intimacy of Power: An insight into private office, Whitehall's most sensitive network Alun Evans, 2024-05-28 Have you ever wondered what happens behind the scenes in the corridors of power during a major crisis or after a ministerial reshuffle How do new government ministers get to grips with their portfolios and priorities Who guides and supports them And why sometimes during events such as Partygate do things go wrong In this meticulously researched book former senior civil servant Alun Evans lifts the lid on a vital but little known cog in the machinery of government private office and the private secretaries who work within it Private secretaries exercise huge influence and yet most of us have never heard of them They are the ones who manage the flow of work who whisper quietly in ministers ears and who have been Prime Ministers closest most trusted and most discreet confidants At critical moments in our national history from the Falklands War to the Westland affair from Black Wednesday to the 2008 financial crash from New Labour to the coalition government they have been central but hidden players With exceptional access to former Prime Ministers and decision makers Evans explores what private office is and why it matters to British democracy He argues that following the egregious constitutional breaches of Boris Johnson s premiership private office must once again be taken seriously so it can return to being the independent junction box of government and a vital part of the British constitution

Mind the Backlash: Gender Discrimination and Sexism in Contemporary Societies Hilde Coffe, Susan Banducci, Marta Fraile, Jessica Fortin-Rittberger, Amy Alexander, 2023-09-26 Decades of campaigns and policy efforts have brought significant progress in women s economic and political status and pushed gender equality up the global policy agenda The goal of gender equality however still remains largely out of reach as illustrated by the recent wave of women s protests against sexual harassment assault and gender violence e g MeToo movement Some European countries e g Poland Hungary and Lithuania have even seen their performance on gender equality backslide in recent years and in parallel to calls for increased equality a wave of mobilisation against gender equality has appeared in the public discourse Conservative authoritarian and populist voices in many democracies are now contesting the equal participation of men and women in society under the auspices of a war on gender ideology This backlash against women s empowerment carries considerable implications for anti discrimination laws policies protecting women against domestic violence reproductive health and the establishment of gender quotas Given the backlash against gender observed in various countries around the globe we argue that now is a critical time to revisit and broaden our knowledge about gender discrimination gender equality and sexism Our proposed Research Topic will provide a gender perspective to illustrate and understand the recent illiberal turn in politics in a variety of contexts Taking a comparative approach we aim at improving our understanding of how sexism discrimination and gender equality operate at the societal level and how they shape broader social and political views At the individual level we will study the current seemingly opposing forces for and against gender equality by analysing the antecedents predispositions experiences and motivations explaining and underpinning these attitudes towards different ways of gender equality sexism and discrimination
