Social Media and the Armed Forces Eva Moehlecke de Baseggio, Olivia Schneider, Tibor Szvircsev Tresch, 2020-09-07 Social media has fundamentally changed communication and interaction in today s society Apart from being used by individuals it is also omnipresent in public sector organisations such as the armed forces This book examines the opportunities and risks associated with social media in the context of the armed forces from an international social scientific perspective It discusses the impact of social media in the everyday life of military personnel and analyses the extent to which social media influences their performance be it as a distraction or as a source of perceived appreciation It particularly highlights the representation of masculinity and femininity in military social media channels since the way gender is portrayed on social media has an effect on how future recruits and at the other end of the military career spectrum veterans feel they are approached The book also focuses on the new form of follow up discussion which enables the armed forces to interact with the population On social media the armed forces are publicly presented and this shapes the public's opinions on them Further the armed forces can use debates as a monitoring tool of society's attitudes towards them or towards events that have an effect on society Conversely social media can lend a voice to military personnel allowing them to be publicly heard As discussions on social media can only be controlled to a limited extent the context in which the armed forces are discussed alters their sphere of influence and potentially leads to a loss of control An extreme example of this is the use of social media as a tool to strategically distribute misinformation in order to shape public opinion and threaten national security Moreover the use of social media to demoralise adversaries or to harm their credibility results in social media being considered a cyber weapon that affects politics and military activities Mediapolis Sam Inkinen, 2012-01-19

No detailed description available for Mediapolis The Rise of New Media 1750-1850 Julia Straub, 2017-05-22 This monograph explores transatlantic literary culture by tracing the proliferation of new media such as the anthology the literary history and the magazine in the period between 1750 and 1850 The fast paced media landscape out of which these publishing genres developed produced the need of a memory of literature and a concomitant rhetoric of remembering strikingly similar to what today is called a cultural memory debate Thus rather than depicting the emergence of an American national literature The Rise of New Media 1750-1850 combines impulses from media history the history of print the sociology of literature and canon theory to uncover nascent forms and genres of literary self reflectivity and early stirrings of a canon debate in the Atlantic World Chronopoetics Wolfgang Ernst, 2016-03-16 Wolfgang Ernst has demonstrated that the knowledge of time giving chrono poetical media and their temporal essence enriches the tradition of philosophical inquiry into the nature of time This book a translated and abridged edition of Ernst's two major volumes Chronopoetik and Gleichursprünglichkeit undertakes this on three levels a close analysis of time critical moments within media technologies descriptions of how media temporalities affect and disrupt the traditional human sense of time and questioning the traditional position of media time within cultural history The book brings together two fields of inquiry the technological analysis of media time processes and the venerable tradition of philosophical inquiry into the nature of time Ernst argues that the scientific inquiry into the nature of time is enriched by the media technological context The book exposes a media theoretical approach to contemporary media culture that derives from the combination of philosophical reflection on the essence of technology and a close analysis of technological devices themselves Ultimately Ernst addresses a fundamental concern of past contemporary and future media culture the position of technology in culture under the focused perspective of its temporalities The Study of Literature Louise Dudley,1928 Classics in Media Theory Stina

Media, Technology and the Imagination Marie Hendry, Jennifer Page, 2013-08-19 The dynamic precarious relationship between technology and imagination or more broadly between the sciences and the humanities is a thrilling crux offering possibilities scholars and artists of previous generations might have only hoped for in the most abstract way No longer is technological advancement confined to the laboratory or to the pages of speculative fiction it is an accepted expected aspect of modern existence including contemporary art performance and literature From the ways we communicate to the ways we create technology has become a conduit as well as an inspiration for imaginative innovation The advent and accessibility of new media communication outlets and innovative software programs have democratized the creative landscape building a community of professionals and amateurs who can freely discuss and shape the way literature art and performance are created and perceived Just as technology has been liberated from categorical confines it has helped art and literature be realized as entities that occur in places besides galleries and libraries Tablets and e readers for example make it possible for literary enthusiasts to read books that are out of print difficult to find or even self published by amateur writers which would have merely been a bibliophile's dream as little as a decade ago Correspondingly the essays in this volume examine the intersection of technology and imaginative creation as it applies to and influences modern film fiction graphic novels and pedagogical practice The contributors investigate how technology has indelibly changed the practice of literary and cultural analysis and even the most basic facets of contemporary society communication relation and creation

The Aesthetics of Nostalgia TV Alex Bevan, 2019-02-07 The Aesthetics of Nostalgia TV explores the aesthetic politics of nostalgia for 1950s and 60s America on contemporary television Specifically it looks at how nostalgic TV production design shapes and is shaped by larger historical discourses on gender and technological change and America's perceived decline as a global power Alex Bevan argues that the aesthetics of nostalgic TV tell stories of their own about historical decline and progress and the place of the baby boomer television suburb in American national memory She contests theories on nostalgia that see it as stagnating regressive or a reversion to outdated gender and racial politics and the technophobic longing for a bygone era and instead argues nostalgia is an important form of historical memory and vehicle for negotiating periods of historical transition The book addresses how and why the shows construct the boomer era as a placeholder for gender racial technological and declensionist discourses of the present The book uses Mad Men AMC 2007 2015 Ugly Betty ABC 2006 2010 Desperate Housewives ABC 2004 2012 and film remakes of 1950s and 60s family sitcoms as primary case studies
