Nutrition and Neurobiology J. C. Somogyi, D. Hötzel, 1986-02-12 Nutritional Needs in Cold and High-Altitude Environments Institute of Medicine, Committee on Military Nutrition Research, 1996-05-15 This book reviews the research pertaining to nutrient requirements for working in cold or in high altitude environments and states recommendations regarding the application of this information to military operational rations It addresses whether aside from increased energy demands cold or high altitude environments elicit an increased demand or requirement for specific nutrients and whether performance in cold or high altitude environments can be enhanced by the provision of increased amounts of specific nutrients Hearings, Reports and Prints of the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs United States. Congress. Senate. Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, 1969 Nutrients and Foods in Aids Ronald R. Watson, 2017-12-14 Lack of proper nutrition can severely impact the immune system especially when it is already compromised This book defines recent advances in understanding the nutritional deficiencies found in AIDS and HIV positive patients It explores the scientific knowledge of how nutritional and dietary changes and herbal medicines can benefit or potentially harm these patients The text also discusses the negative effects of undernutrition that can lead to starvation a potent immunosuppressant Nutrients and Foods in AIDS is a much needed scientific appraisal of current alternative strategies used in preventing or treating AIDS and its symptoms for improved quality of life Nutrition and Mental Functions George Serban, 2013-03-13 The description of sequelae of nutritional deficiencies was equally oversimplified Obviously a disease like rickets which affected hard tissues the skeleton had irreversible consequences Destruction or alteration of tissues such as in cancrum oris or severe xerophthalmia was equally permanent and easily observed Other models were beriberi or scurvy where by contrast the vitamin treatment seemed to restore the individual to the completely normal status quo ante Most nutritionists were therefore little prepared intellectually for the series of suggestive findings concerning nutrition and mental development which has been the highlight of nutritional research in the past decade the discovery that there are irreversible gaps in mental development not correlated with obvious permanent somatic lesions which follow acute malnutrition during the development of the young infant Furthermore not only are existing somatic instruments physical examination the scale and the measuring tape inadequate to detect such intellectual and behavioral deficits but some of the current psychological instruments bound to traditions of Western culture are often poorly adapted to measure fine differences in psychological development among poor populations These initial discoveries have stimulated important methodological advances ranging from better staining techniques for the study of fibers connecting brain neurons to better tests for the study of cognitive development
